HARRY COOPER PLAYS ARMOUR FOR GOLF TITLE

Eighteen-Hole Match This Afternoon To Decide National Open Champ

BOTH CITIZENS OF U. S.

Natives of British Isles But Americans by Right of Choice

Oakmont Country Club, Pittsburgh, June 17—The National Open Golf championship this afternoon will render unto America the things that are America's, for the principals in the 18-hole play-off, Tom Armour, Washington, D. C., and Harry Cooper, Los Angeles, were natives of another country by the mere circumstance of birth but Americans by the divine right of choice. Both were born in the British Isles but the land of opportunity beckoned and this afternoon that gesture of welcome was to see its fulfillment for one of them.

At the end of the 18 holes of medal play, supplementary to the regular championship rounds because this pair finished in a tie for the title at 301 strokes, it was probable that one man will have established his superiority over the other. At the end of 18 holes, a boy who first saw the light of day in the cold, repressed atmosphere of an average British home, will have become the man of the hour in the country of his adoption.

Small Gallery

Cooper has been a resident since early childhood, Armour came over seven years ago, but whatever their blood, their tendencies or their temperaments may be, their golf is strictly an American development. Armour arrived as a golfer, true enough, but not as a national champion and that is what he may be at the end of today's play off. His game really was of no particular consequence until the last few years.

They left the tee for the tenth play-off in 31 open championship tournaments with a rather disappointingly small gallery under foot and a dark, threatened sky over-head. The day

ARMY FLIERS HOP OFF ENROUTE TO HAWAII

Leave Dayton for Los Angeles; Want to Beat Navy Across

Dayton, June 17—Two army fliers today are winging their way to Los Angeles, where they will begin a non-stop flight to Hawaii, it was learned here today from officials at Wright field. The fliers, Lt. Lester Maitland and Lt. A. F. Aggenberger, left here late yesterday in a three-motored Fokker monoplane, and were later reported at Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., and at Hat Box Field, Muskogee, Okla.

The army's attempt to beat the navy on the attempt to make the first successful Hawaiian flight, it is said here, has been responsible for the deep secrecy that has surrounded the preparation and take-off.

At Los Angeles, it was admitted here, the Wright Field aviators will stop to overhaul and refuel their ship with the least possible delay.

KILLS WOMAN

Thwarted Love Turned into Tragedy at Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, June 17—Thwarted love turned into tragedy today when Homer M. Mc Tyre, 35, shot and killed Mrs. Belle E. Black in her room at the boarding house where they both lived. He then killed himself.

Mrs. Black was shot as she lay in bed, after she had refused to marry McTyre. Only two weeks ago, it was learned, Mrs. Black had broken off her engagement with McTyre for another man.

An 11-year-old daughter of the slain woman, a divorcee, witnessed the murder and suicide. She was sleeping in the same room with her mother when McTyre pushed open the door at an early hour today and made a final effort to persuade the woman to marry him.

Jersey City, N. J., June 17—Fire broke out early today in the fourth regiment armory and within a short time the entire interior of the building was a mass of flames. There was no one in the armory at the time.

Three alarms were turned in before the building was gutted. Firemen got the blaze under control after it had caused damage to the extent of $1,000,000.

Peking, June 17—A Standard Oil Co. steamship which was carrying United States Vice Counsul Robert L. Smyth from Ichang was under heavy rifle fire between Wuchang and Hanyang, and, while a number of bullets struck the bridge, there were no casualties, said a dispatch received here today.

ITALY DOES DE PINEDO HOMAGE FOR HIS FEAT

Nation as Enthusiastic Over Flier as Is U. S. for Lindbergh

Rome, June 17—All Italy is as frantically enthusiastic over Commander Francesco De Pinedo as the United States is over Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

De Pinedo, who has arrived here after completing a four-continent airplane flight, is mobbed whenever he appears in public, his admirers refusing to permit him to proceed about his business as he wishes.

The government is giving a great banquet tonight in De Pinedo's honor, when it is understood he will be officially advised of his appointment as chief of staff for aviation.

The pope will receive the flier tomorrow and is expected to confer a high honor upon him.

United States Ambassador Fletcher today sent a message to Premier Mussolini presenting the congratulations of President Coolidge and the American people on the successful conclusion of De Pinedo's flight.

St. Joseph, Mich., June 17—"King" Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David, performed all sorts of antics to amuse girl members of the colony, Mrs. Bamford Reed testified today in the state's suit to dissolve the cult.

"He used to draw, play the piano and do the hula hula," said Mrs. Reed. It was certainly funny watching him try to shimmy in front of these girls. After he cavorated around he would sit on some of the girls' laps or take them on his knee and pet and kiss them before the whole crowd. He used to think he was quite a basketball player, too, and he played with the girls often. There were never any other males allowed in these games."

BAD WEATHER DELAYS HOP-OFF OF AMERICA

Byrd May Not Get Away for Europe Before Sunday Morning

New York, June 17—Bad weather continues to delay the hop-off of Commander Richard E. Byrd in the monoplane America for Europe.

It seemed probable this morning that Byrd would not be able to get away before Sunday.

Byrd said he certainly would not take off today.

There are two zones of adverse weather—one of 800 miles in diameter southeast of New Foundland and the other 1,000 miles west of Scotland and, also, covering a wide area.

James H. Scarr, local forecaster, said the unfavorable weather is not likely to clean up for two days.

Meantime, the giant tri-motored Fokker plane is conditioned to go, except for the taking on of gasoline and food supplies which would require only a short time.

MAYOR HAZEN ON BENCH IN MARTIN'S ABSENCE

Illness of Daughter Places Municipal Judge Under Quarantine

Mayor Earl Hazen is occupying the bench in municipal court during the absence of Judge William R. Martin who is quarantined at his home on E. Church-st, by the illness of his little daughter who is suffering from a mild case of scarletina. Owing to the fact that the mayor, under the general code, is not authorized to sit in civil cases, it is probable that an attorney will be appointed to serve on the bench should Judge Martin be off for any length of time.

All civil cases which had been set for hearing today or tomorrow, have been continued until next week. Mayor Hazen this morning levied a fine of $20 and costs on Jerry Regan, 34, when he pleaded guilty to being drunk. Regan was arrested at Main and Center-st last night. He was taken to the county jail this morning when he failed to pay the fine.

Rogers, who recently returned from a nationwide lecture tour in behalf of the Mississippi Flood sufferers, was brought to a hospital here yesterday, suffering from gall stones.

Harding Memorial Association Taking Initiative in Efforts To Bring Flier Here

DAVIS FAVORS PROPOSAL

Flier Plans To Cover U. S. in Plane After Visiting St. Louis

With local officers of the Harding Memorial Association taking the initiative plans were being drafted here today to invite Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, New York to Paris flier, to Marion on his proposed tour of the country in the interest of aviation.

In keeping with earlier plans Colonel Lindbergh will be asked to place a wreath on the tomb of President and Mrs. Harding, in the event plans to bring here are successful.

Enlist New

Support of Postmaster General Harry S. New has already been enlisted, a telegram having been dispatched to him by Hake Doolittle, chairman of the executive committee of the Harding Memorial Association.

It had been previously planned to have Colonel Lindbergh stop here en-route from New York to St. Louis, but the flier's itinerary, calling for a non-stop flight, had already been completed.

Congressman Brooks Fletcher, Marion, who was asked to use his influence in arranging for Colonel Lindbergh to visit Marion on his way to St. Louis expresses the hope that the flier can be persuaded to come to Marion during his tour which is scheduled to follow his visit to St. Louis and San Diego.

"Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis is heartily in favor of the plan to have Lindbergh place a wreath on Harding's tomb," Congressman Fletcher explains in a letter received here today, "and regrets that you did not get in your request before Lindbergh had booked every minute of his time and completed arrangements for his non-stop flight."

Fletcher's Telegram

The telegram which Congressman Fletcher sent to Colonel Lindbergh in care of the mayor's committee, New York City follows:

"Ohio and entire nation will be deeply grateful if you will honor the memory of the late President Warren G. Harding by stopping in Marion enroute west to put a wreath on the Harding tomb.

"This thoughtful consideration on your part would mean much to all of the millions of us who loved Harding and revere his memory and it would add to the esteem and affection in which you are already held by America and the world."

Port Huron, Mich., June 17—Mrs. Stephen Malinske, 34, and her three children, Stephen, 11, Mary, 7, and an infant daughter were burned to death today when fire destroyed their home near here.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp in a chicken brooder.

Mrs. Malinske lost her life in a vain attempt to rescue her children, who had been trapped in a bedroom.

The father escaped.

Trailing AFTER Lindy

PATERSON, N. J., June 17—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh circled the Wright Aeronautical Corporation's plant here today on his way west. The factory workers cheered him as he brought "The Spirit of St. Louis" down to an altitude of about 200 feet and made three turns around the factory grounds.

After this farewell to the men who made the motor that carried his airship from New York to France the flier rose steadily, flying due west, and soon passed out of sight.

Carlisle Junction, Pa., June 17—Three planes, one believed to be that of Lindbergh, passed over here at 9:7 o'clock (eastern standard time) headed due west and following the lines of the Reading Railroad.

SHIPPENSBURG, Pa., June 17—A monoplane believed to be that of Lindbergh passed over here at 9:37 a. m., eastern standard time, headed for Chambersburg.

The monoplane had been following the Reading Railroad, but on his Chambersburg route the flier passed the last Reading dispatcher's shack, heading his plane slightly south.

A few miles farther on this route Lindbergh will pass over the Allegheny Mountains. Unless he changes his present course the plane is not expected to pass over Pittsburgh.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 17—Three airplanes, one of which was believed to be Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis," soared over a point several miles south of here at 9:20 a. m., eastern standard time, according to a report received by the Reading Railroad from a dispatcher.

BEDFORD, PA., June 17—Colonel Lindbergh and his escort of army airplanes flew over Bedford County shortly after 10 a. m., eastern standard time, and headed toward Uniontown, according to reports received here. The fliers were having no trouble passing over the Allegheny Mountains.

Connellsville, Pa., June 17—Making excellent time over the treacherous Allegheny Mountains, Lindbergh and the two army planes accompanying him to St. Louis droned over Connellsville at 10:37 a. m. They were following the regular U. S. airline course to Uniontown.

ZANESVILLE, June 17—Colonel Lindbergh passed over Zanesville at 11:50 a. m. eastern standard time.

His monoplane, escorted by two army machines, passed over the edge of the city, flying high and apparently moving at tremendous speed.

Zanesville is 58 miles east of Columbus, on the Baltimore & Ohio Railway, which Lindbergh was following.

BULLETINS

Dayton, June 17—"We," with Col. Charles Lindbergh at the stick circled over Wilbur Wright Field here today at 12:26 p. m. as 27 pilots, including the famous Selfridge Field pursuit group took off to escort the flier to St. Louis.

Colonel Lindbergh, after circling the field, piloted "The Spirit of St. Louis" from the field to the city of Dayton, where he circled the business district three times, flying low, but indulging in no "stunting." He then returned to the field, picked up the 27-plane escort, zoomed upward, and headed westward for the Indiana state line, 60 miles distant, at 1:10 p. m.

Columbus, June 17 — Colonel Lindbergh flew over Norton Field here at 12:15 p. m. today, and continued his journey to St. Louis by way of Dayton.

He will pick up an escort of 20 army pursuit and transport ships at Dayton, after circling the city, which is the home of the Wright brothers, and the "birthplace of Aviation."

The flier did not hesitate at Columbus, but continued, with his two-ship escort, after passing over Norton Field.

He was flying at a good altitude, and averaging around 100 miles an hour.

Passing the field and reaching the city proper, Lindbergh left his route long enough to descend, and execute a series of "stunts" for the edification of thousands of persons who crowded the streets and roofs and windows of downtown buildings.

Piloting "The Spirit of St. Louis" down to within a few hundred feet above the earth, Lindbergh zoomed the silver-winged monoplane between the skyscrapers while the crowds yelled and applauded in frenzied delight.

A dozen local ships took the air to greet him, and circled over the city, and Lindbergh continued the journey westward to Dayton.

St. Louis, June 17—The Lindbergh frenzy today had thrown St. Louis into civic hysteria.

"Slim" is coming home.

Nothing else matters. The city has locked its collective rolltop desk and let itself run wild in an orgy of adulation.

Flight bulletins have usurped the place of stock market tickers as St. Louis tensely follows the progress of his flight from the east.

The civic enthusiasm which followed the winning of the world's baseball championship last year threatens to become a mere ripple of excitement in comparison with the onrushing wave of sentimentalism which will strike the city about 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, when the "ace of the Atlantic" will wing his way over the Mississippi River, and glide down over his adopted city.

Marion Residents to Have Opportunity to Brighten Lives of Marion Children

Teachers Certify List of Youngsters Who Are in Need of Outing and Who Must Depend on Generous Neighbors and Friends

All set for your vacation this summer?

Know just where you are going to go, and best of all, that you are going to do just the things you like to do? It's great, but while you are doing these things, it would add a lot of pleasure if you could just think that because of you, some little boy or girl who had otherwise been destined to spend the long hot summer in the streets, was enjoying a real vacation in just the way and just the place children enjoy vacations.

There are 85 boys and 53 girls in the city of Marion, who according to the teachers who selected them from their classes, need the quiet cool shade of camps, but who will spend the hot summer playing on the streets and sidewalks, unless others, who are more fortunate, are willing to share a small part of their vacation money with them.

$100 Donated

Approximately $100 has been donated to give these children a vacation this summer, it was announced today by members of the camp committee of Camp Robert Uhler at Hepburn. There are also some manufacturers who have offered to pay one-half the cost of sending children of their employes.

While some money has been received and provisions made for some of these children to attend the camp, there are many who will be forced to spend the summer in the city unless more is forthcoming.

Those who have some child in mind they would like to assist in sending to camp for 10 days this summer or who want to contribute to the fund, are asked to get in touch with the camp committee which consists of E. K. Uhler, Elmer J. Schoenlaub, Morgan Burke, Charles H. Isaly and J. J. Stafford, secretary of the boys' work committee of the Y. M. C. A., or James R. Smith, secretary of the boys' work committee of the Rotary Club.

Cost $10 at Camp

It will cost $10 to send one boy or girl to Camp Robert Uhler for 10 days but it isn't necessary to contribute that amount. Any amount from $1 up, will help at least one of these children to get away from the heat and dust of the city this summer for a 10-day stay along the rippling water of the lake at Camp Robert Uhler.

Those who will be among the fortunate to go to camp, will find much that is new. Swings and merry-go-rounds have been added, a huge lodge will provide a place for basketball and will serve as a haven on rainy days. A slide from a tree into the lake and a floating dock in the center of the lake for swimmers, are also new features for the entertainment of those who go to camp this summer.

Do You Have These Symptoms?

Folks Near or Past Forty Should Watch These Danger Signs

Dizziness, headaches, shortness of breath, distress after eating, gas in stomach and bowels, pressure or sharp pains in right side that often shoot through to the back, coated tongue, bad breath, lack of ambition, weakness, nervousness and nights of restless misery caused by bad dreams or inability to sleep—these are some of "The Danger Signals" indicating hepatic torpidity, gall stones or gall bladder inflammation.

Thousands of lives have been wrecked and other thousands made thoroughly miserable—because they did not heed these warning signs in time. Women in their "Forties" are particularly liable to these troubles and hundreds who think they have high blood pressure are simply suffering from hepatic torpidity or gall bladder inflammation.

Don't take a chance on gall stones and don't let your system get filled with poison that may cause months or even years of miserable ill health. At the very first warning sign ask Bradley Drug Store or any other good druggist for "Klax-Ko" tablets and be assured of swift and positive relief or your money promptly refunded. Klax-Ko tablets have brought new life and health to hundreds who thought they had some dangerous internal trouble—and in many instances have saved the pain and expense of an operation for gall stones. Ten days use will convince you of their honest value in your particular case. Try them today!—Adv.

TRAVELING MEN ASK RELIEF ON BERTH CHARGES

Will Urge Congress To Remove Surcharge from Pullman Tickets

Columbus, June 17—When Congress meets in December it will be asked to consider the lifting of a fifty per cent surcharge placed on Pullman tickets during the war and which has never been lifted if plans of the United Commercial Travelers materialize, according to Charles H. Smith, editor of Sample Case, official journal of the U. C. T.

Supreme Council of the U. C. T. and nearly 300 delegates will meet here June 28, to hold their 40th annual session. At this time the legislature of the organization is expected to pass a resolution asking that the surcharge be lifted, along with several other measures, Smith announced.

Adopted in War

During the war, the railroads were taken over by the government. Among ways adopted for raising money was the fifty per cent surcharge on Pullman tickets. When the railroads were returned to their respective companies by the government, the surcharge was not lifted and the Pullman company has been collecting this charge on all Pullman tickets, Smith claims.

Another step toward reducing traveling expenses of the members of the U. C. T. will be a resolution asking that a wholesale price list on tickets be adopted by the railroads. Officials of the U. C. T. maintain that it is justified in making this request since its members spend large sums annually for tickets.

If these two measures are passed by the U. C. T. legislature they will have the combined support of all other commercial traveling associations in the United States, Smith said, which have a membership of more than 750,000.

Fight Hotel Rates

Complaints on hotel rates will also be registered by the travelers' legislature with the larger hotel unions. They complain that the rates on rooms are governed by the number of visitors in some cities, according to Smith.

Uniform hotel laws will be requested by the legislature, Smith said, and will be handed down to the hotel committees of each grand jurisdiction for consideration. The committees in turn will be asked to call on the state legislatures to enact on these laws, Smith said.

Strong opposition is being formed by the U. C. T. against chain stores, Smith announced.

Leading the speakers at the annual banquet June 29, is Sam T. Br[illegible], supreme counselor, San Francisco, rated as one of the most gifted orators in America.

George E. Hunt, managing director of the Clark Store Co., Boston, will be the toastmaster.

Percy A. Patterson, Altoona, Pa., newly elected supreme counselor, who will go into office next year, and W. S. Vivian, Chicago, director of public relations department of the Middle-west Public Utilities Corp., will also talk.

Both east and west Canada and every state in the Union will be represented at the annual affair.

Deserts Capital

Joining the annual exodus of society from Washington in the summertime, Mrs. Sutherland Elmore, the former Edith Lee Sutherland, daughter of the U. S. Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. George Sutherland, with her son, George, will pass the summer with her parents in Marin County, Calif.

rdered By Mayor Hazen To Leave City nd Brought Back Later In Ambulance

TER she had bargained with Mayor Hazen in municipal last night until he had ac- $10 and costs in payment $25 fine for telling fortunes promise to leave town representing payment for the rest of the fine, Mrs. Anna Western, member of a Bohemian caravan today was back in the city, in fact, City Hospital, the victim of misfortune.

Mrs. Western sustained a fracture of the pelvis and severe limb bruises in collision of one of the caravan cars and a Ford driven by a farmer, whose name could not be learned, on the Harding Highway, west of Marion, at about 10 o'clock last night.

Other occupants of the caravan car were uninjured as was the farmer. Both cars were damaged.

Farmer's Car Sideswiped

The accident occurred shortly after the gypsies had broken camp and were heading west. The farmer was sideswiped by the seven-passenger sedan as he turned into the lane at this farm. The injured woman was brought to City Hospital in the M. H. Gunder invalid car.

Mrs. Western carried an important role in a happy scene in municipal court early last night and shortly before her ejection from the city. Mayor Hazen and other officials were favored with a highly interesting discussion on "When Is a Gypsy Not a Gypsy?" The lady fortune teller and accident victim, who is also a traveler of wide experience, spoke at length before an appreciative audience.

Ordered To Pay, Leave

Final deductions from the informal debate resulted with all agreeing heartily that Mrs. Western should pay $10 fine and costs for telling fortunes, that she need not be called a gypsy if she didn't wish it so, and that she and her friends make themselves scarce, the quicker the better.

Four other women members of the traveling party were with Mrs. Western when she was arrested on Kenton-av.

LINDY HOPS OFF FROM MITCHEL FIELD

New York, June 17—With a happy smile and a wave to the assembled throng, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off from Mitchel Field at 8:17 o'clock this morning for St. Louis in his famous monoplane, "The Spirit of St. Louis."

He had planned to make the 900-mile westward flight in 10 hours but it would be just like "Slim" to try and better his record jump from St. Louis to New York of seven hours and 15 minutes.

More than 2,000 persons including many women, cheered as "We" soared gracefully into the air and headed due west.

Take-off Sudden

"Lindy" executed his take-off so quickly that the crowd was taken by surprise. Without easing the monoplane out of the hangar, as is customary, Lindbergh "opened her up" wide and roared out onto the field between two lines of spectators. He shot along for about 100 feet, and then rose sharply at an angle.

Within two minutes he was out of sight.

Weather conditions were perfect for the take off. The sky was cloudless and the sun shining.

Just before he took off Lindbergh said he would fly a straight airline course for St. Louis. He said he would encircle New York City, proceeding directly to Columbus, pass over Wilbur Wright Field at Dayton, O., where he is to be met and escorted by 21 pursuit planes and that he may fly over Indianapolis.

Due at 4:30 p. m.

He will land at Lambert Field, St. Louis, he said, and expects to arrive there at 4:30 p. m., central time. He hoped to gain two hours by flying straight westward into the sun, he said.

New York's official goodbye was said by Grover A. Whalen, head of the city's welcoming committee.

"I enjoyed my stay and will be glad to come back again," said Lindbergh.

"The Spirit of St. Louis" sailed over Brooklyn, then crossed to New York, circled the Woolworth building as thousands watched and then headed over the Battery in a westerly direction. Two planes followed him as he flew low over the Battery.

was mild but a threat of rain was in the air.

Armour Gains

Armour gained a stroke on the opening hole with a very sound four against Cooper's par 5. Harry was slightly "away" after the tee shots, being outdriven some 15 yards, and in trying to get home, pulled his second a bit to the left of the green. Armour replied with a full iron to the green, 20 feet short of the pin.

As Cooper chipped toward the pin, there was a slight stir in the gallery and an official stopped the match to caution camera hounds against the use of portable movie outfits. Harry's chip rolled five feet past the pin and Armour was six feet over with his approach putt. But he got down with his next and Cooper didn't, that being that.

The gallery had increased to about 2,500 at this juncture.

Retains Advantage

The second hole saw Armour retain his advantage of a single stroke as each got down in 4's.

Both hit the center of the fairway off the tee but Harry's drive was slightly better placed for the approach to the green. However, he was away again and had to play the "odd." A fine second shot that got a big hand from the gallery clustered about the green like a chosen people waiting for the millenium. His ball came to rest only five feet from the pin, while Armour's was 20 feet away. However, Harry again missed the putt and Tommy got his close enough to save the stroke he gained on the first hole.

Cooper got that stroke back at the third hole, where he took a par 4 to Armour's tee.

Harry's Better Drive

For the first time, Harry got the better drive, outdistancing Armour by 35 yards. Both tee shots escaped trouble for the third time in three holes, and they played their seconds from the fairway with a strong following wind to reckon with. They reckoned neither wisely nor too well, both pitch shots carrying over the green.

Tommy got an excellent chip shot, six feet past the pin, but Harry got a better one. In fact, it was so good that he almost holed out for a birdie three, the ball stopping just a feet short of the hole. Tommy still had a chance to tie on the hole by sinking his putt but he missed. Harry didn't. It might have been said that he couldn't but every golfer knows that you can miss anything if you happen to want it bad enough.

Match uncompleted at press hour.

GIVES CITY FARM

Noted Oculist Disposes of $550,000 Estate in Will

Milwaukee, June 17—Disposing of a $550,000 estate, the will of Dr. Joseph Schneider, 82, internationally known oculist, who died here recently, was on file in probate court here today.

It gives to the city of Milwaukee his farm at Fox Point, Wis., on condition that it be used for a wild fowl preserve and recreation park and to be officially known as the "Doctor's Park."

A trust fund of $300,000 is created to provide an income for Dr. Schneider's sister, Agnes Schneider, Breslau, Germany, and for the support of the Anna Francisca Eye Hospital at the Universit yof Surzburg in Germany.

Three Marion Youths Miss Chance to See Lindbergh

THREE Marion youths, who a week ago, were stirred by the same desire that affected nearly a million people, arrived, tanned, sunburned and sleepy in Marion today from Washington where they made an effort but were unsuccessful in catching a glimpse of the transatlantic flier, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The youths all under 19 years of age, "Freddy" Haberman, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Haberman, Jr., S. Main-st; Richard "Juky" Haberman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Haberman, Delaware-av, and "Jimmie" Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Mitchell, Walnut-st, set out in a somewhat dilapidated, roofless Ford roadster from Marion at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Car Stood Strain

The machine, worked perfectly under the strain of the 488 mile trip, brought the local youths into Washington at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, just one hour after Lindbergh had landed and had been paraded through the streets. Because of the denseness of the crowds gathered at Washington's monument where the official honors were bestowed upon Lindbergh by President Coolidge, the boys were also unsuccessful in seeing the great flier there.

Not to be outdone, however, by the crowds which prevented them viewing America's great hero, the Marion youths left the crowds in the city and took part of the day in noticing the mechanism and structure of Lindbergh's plane, "Spirit of St. Louis."

After taking other sights of the capital, the boys started for Marion at 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and guided their car into Marion at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

MANY BOYS AND GIRLS IN SWIMMING CLASSES

Instructions at Y. M. C. A. Prove Very Popular with Hundreds of Children

Hundreds of Marion boys and girls have been taking advantage of the swimming classes conducted during the last week at the Y. M. C. A., under the direction of F. O. Rudolph, physical director of the "Y," and Miss Edith Keeler.

Pupils in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades who cannot swim are eligible for the classes and may receive three lessons if they wish. The first round of lessons will be completed Tuesday, June 20, and a new schedule for the second round will be announced.

Those schools remaining in the first round and the time scheduled for pupils are as follows:

N. Main-st, Monday, June 20; Oak-st, Tuesday, June 21; Mark-st, Wednesday, June 22; Silver-st, Thursday, June 23; N. State-st, Friday, June 24; St. Mary's, Monday, June 25; Central Juniors, Tuesday, June 26.

Boys from these schools will be given lessons from 9 to 12 each morning and girls will receive instructions from 1 to 3 o'clock each afternoon.

Swimming classes for women who are non members of the Y. M. C. A. will be conducted every Tuesday and Thursday night at 7:30, beginning next Thursday, it was announced today. A small fee will be charged for non-members. Members are also permitted to attend these swimming sessions, free of charge.

NO DECISION REACHED ON CRYSTAL LAKE PARK

Future of Recreational Center Not Settled; Officials Biding Time

No definite plans for the future of Crystal Lake Park, have yet been made, it was announced this morning by Fred Scherff, park manager.

Mr. Scherff said it was the desire of the park management to be fair in the matter and if it was found possible from a financial standpoint, to operate the park without revenue received from the Sunday night dances, the park will continue to be operated, if not, it will be closed.

The unseasonable weather which has existed since the closing of the Sunday night dances, has prevented a fair test of whether or not the park can be operated without the Sunday night dances, Mr. Scherff said. It is probable the fate of the park will be decided within the next two or three weeks.

Daily Proverb—"Poor men seek meat for their stomachs; rich men, stomachs for their meat."

Had President Coolidge waited but a day or two, he might have gone west with Lindbergh and got acquainted with the people.

We note that summer is due to arrive next Wednesday, which reminds us that we must tell the janitor to shovel a little more coal into the furnace.

The city of Boston desires a pair of giraffes for its zoo, but it wants to pay for them by the length of the animals' tails, while the animal people value them by the lengths of their necks.

Governor Donahey boldly proclaimed his friendship for the state library, and to prove it he then locked it up that it might not be carried away.

All things considered, we can never be sufficiently thankful that it was Lindbergh who didn't hesitate about hopping off in a fog.

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, demands freedom of speech in the senate. The senator must contemplate a change in the vaudeville act he has been putting on at public expense.

Considering the season of the year that presidential vacations are taken, it must be gratifying to Mr. Coolidge that there aren't any doubtful Republican states in the South.

Noting a story about the resignation of the last town crier, at Provincetown, Massachusetts, the Chicago News asks: "What about William Hale Thompson?" Though William may not so intend, he is rather generally recognized as his town's decrier.

Three hundred and seventy-five tons of paper were thrown out of the windows of New York buildings during the Lindbergh parade. An entire wood wasted in one day. No wonder the world looks upon us as wasters.

Let's see! What were the names of the guilty pair sentenced to death for killing the husband of the woman in the case by using a window sash weight and picture wire?

Jay House, writing in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, says "nobody really knows anything about hatreds unless he has participated in a school-board row or a county seat fight." Maybe so, but we have always imagined that members of church choirs were in position to get a pretty good idea of what hatreds are like.

Aha! A Meteorologist!

It has been said that "we live to learn," and whoever said it certainly hit the exact center of the bull's-eye. We have been going on for quite some time endeavoring to absorb a little knowledge, day by day, but up to a day or two ago we have been a degree or two off in our conception of the definition of meteorologist. We had always assumed that a meteorologist was one who studied meteors, and we would have gone on so thinking had we not noticed a news story referring to the manner in which Professor J. B. Kimcer, "meteorologist of the department of agriculture," was giving the fellows, who have predicted that 1927 would be a year without a summer, a few gentle digs. When we looked it up, we found that a meteorologist is "one who is skilled in the science of the atmosphere and its various phenomena," which covers a bit more ground than the study of meteors alone.

Meteorologist Kimcer says that, if 1927 is to be a year without a summer, it made a poor start during the three spring months, that a summary of weather conditions just completed by the weather bureau for the months of March, April and May shows that all over the United States, except in Montana, Colorado and Wyoming and westward, temperatures averaged from normal to two degrees above normal during the three months. In the western section the range was from normal to three degrees below.

"People forget that the usual kind of weather is the unusual," said Professor Kimcer. "There were killing frosts during the spring months, but there always are killing frosts in that period."

The rainfall was the abnormal feature of this spring weather, the professor explained to the Washington press representatives, although both floods and droughts are usual in certain sections during spring months. This year twice as much rainfall as normal fell in the central valleys, including the Ohio and central and upper Mississippi, while severe drought conditions prevailed in the Southwest and Southeast, with about half the usual amount of rain.

It's the old, old story regarding these long-distance weather prophets. We have been watching their predictions for years and recall scores which went wrong and never one that came out right. All we can say for them is that they are superbly endowed with hope. They blunder along, year after year, only to meet with failure, apparently serene in the hope that some year they will hit the thing off right.

An Obligation Owed the Future.

New York state is doing her utmost to restore her forests to what they were before they suffered at the ruthless hands of man. This spring she has broken all her former tree-planting records. During the tree-planting season just ended 21,760,000 trees have been set out in the Empire state, which exceeds the number planted last spring by 4,772,750.

Of this vast total of almost 22,000,000, nearly 5,500,000 were planted on state land, while the remainder were set out by counties, cities, towns, villages, school districts and private individuals.

Organizations of all kinds were enlisted in the work—farmer's clubs, sportsmen's clubs, motoring associations, road building organizations, Boy Scouts, and many others, the state conservation department reporting enthusiastic aid and assistance being rendered by rural and urban districts alike.

Enumerating some of the factors contributing to the marked growth of the reforestation movement in New York state, the conservation department report, just made public, says:

"Recent amendments to the tax laws relieve planted forests of a yearly tax on the growth. The Fisher law, passed in 1926, provided that forest land planted since 1921 should be assessed on the basis of the value of the land, exclusive of the value of the trees, but made certain exceptions based upon the proximity of landed forests to cities. In 1927 this law was amended, removing the exceptions, so that the law applied equally in all parts of the state. A tax of six per cent. of the stumpage value is collected when the forest is cut. The steady improvement in the state's fire protective system has greatly reduced the forest fire hazard and made forests a reasonably safe investment. The average annual forest fire loss in the fire towns for the last five years was only 14-100 of one per cent. or less than one-tenth as large as it was before the present intensive system of forest protection was in operation. Last year's fire loss was only one-fiftieth of one per cent.

"The fact that it is more profitable to reforest idle non-agricultural land than to leave it non-productive and pay taxes on it has brought many recruits to the reforesting movement and is bringing more every year, as early plantations demonstrate what may be expected from planted forests."

It is a matter for regret that the reforestation movement in New York state can not be duplicated, else considered, in every state of the union. Were the same enthusiasm being shown in New York manifested throughout the country it would mean fewer and smaller floods, a more general distribution of rainfall—assuring better average crops—and cheaper building material. It is a movement in which all should be interested—all are, if they but knew it—and we here in Ohio are no exceptions to the rule. Yet for some reason, we do not give the movement the thought and effort which its importance demands.

There are some obligations we owe to the future. Reforestation is one of them.

Luck is certainly breaking right with Chaliapin, the Russian basso. He has had his "citizenship rights" taken away by the so-called government of the soviets because he sang for the benefit of some needy Russian refugees.

This may be said for Mussolini; he may have a lot to say about how the people of Italy handle their properties, but he has not taken their properties away.

It's hard to understand to what use Chicago's proposed auditorium with a seating capacity of 75,000 is to be put. Certainly receptions are not to be tendered to returning aviators indefinitely.

Looking backward something like three decades, we deem it well to advise Mr. Lindbergh that, should he accept a home or something like that from his admiring countrymen, it will be the part of wisdom for him to think for a considerable time before deeding it away.

From the fact that she has tackled the job of "saving" Chicago, we are just about forced to the conclusion that Aimee Semple McPherson is one of those sold to the view that nothing is impossible.

According to Owen D. Young, the world does not owe men a living; but business, if it is to fulfil its ideals, owes men the opportunity to earn a living. You never can tell. We may yet hear the "personal liberty" crowd citing this as an argument against prohibition.

The Lowden machine is reported to be at work in every state in the union. If our memory serves us correctly, it was the Lowden machine which spilled the beans for Frank in the 1920 preliminary.

We have no desire to question the statement of the Hon. William Gibbs McAdoo, that "the attack on the eighteenth amendment is but a part of a great movement which menaces all that is most American in our institutions," but goodness, gracious, William, why did it take you so long to find it out?

President Green, of the American Federation of Labor, remarks that "the American worker has learned that the less waste there is, the higher wages will be." And since learning this both labor and capital have enjoyed such prosperity as they never knew before.

Poems That Live.

THIS IS THE PLACE.

Here is the place where Loveliness keeps house,
Between the river and the wooded hills,
Within a valley where the Springtime spills
Her frailing wind-flowers under blossoming boughs;
Where Summer sits braiding her warm, white brows
With bramble-roses; and where Autumn fills
Her lap with asters; and old Winter frills
With crimson haw and hip his snowy blouse.
Here you may meet with Beauty. Here she sits
Gazing upon the moon, or all the day
Tuning a wood-thrush flute, remote, unseen;
Or when the storm is out, 'tis she who flits
From rock to rock, a form of flying spray,
Shouting, beneath the leaves' tumultuous green.

"A MAN'S A MAN FOR A' THAT."

Health Lies in the Heart.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Did you ever hear of "cardiac insufficiency?"

In plain language this means an unfit and weak heart. It is a condition of the heart which makes it incapable of doing its full duty to the body.

Having an unfit heart is pretty serious business. You can get along without an ear or a foot, or with an unfit hand, but it lessens your usefulness and happiness every minute of your life if you have an unfit heart.

There can be no perfection of health in skin, or muscle, or stomach, or brain, if the heart muscles are not strong and vigorous. That vital organ must force the blood in cleansing stream to every part of the body or there can not be 100% physical efficiency.

The food we eat is not utilized unless there is an abundant supply of oxygen. This is carried with the air into our lungs. It passes through the thin walls of the air cells into the blood. The oxygen combines with a chemical substance in the blood cells, a substance known as "hemoglobin."

The combination of the oxygen and hemoglobin is known to the scientists as "oxyhemoglobin." In this form it is carried to every part of the body and used where it is required.

Some substances, fat for instance, are stored up in the body. They make a sort of reserve, to be called out for service when it is needed. But this is not the case with the oxyhemoglobin. It passes a given point but once. If it is not taken up by the tissues which need it, they have no second chance at that particular cargo. And, of course, if the blood cells are not loaded with this precious material, there is none to do the cleansing and purifying work essential to health. Neither is there any oxygen to burn the food we eat and make it available for the upbuilding of the body.

The purpose of food is to supply energy. By this energy we perform all our activities and by it the tissues of our bodies are repaired and made to grow. There can be no heat production without the oxygen to generate it. This can not be had without good blood and free circulation.

So, you see, our individual welfare depends upon the unfailing activity of a strong heart. It must be a fit heart, a dependable heart, a well-developed muscular heart.

Such a heart sends the blood through the lungs. There it picks up its loads of oxygen. This it carries everywhere, to the last cell and fibre of the body. It prepares the food for our use, supplies the energy, gives us pep, and disposes of the waste products.

We don't want cardiac insufficiency. On the contrary, each of us wants "cardiac sufficiency," founded on a capable and useful heart.

[A third article on the heart will appear tomorrow.]

Editorial Comment.

OUR SHADOW ACROSS SPACE.

The chief interest of the astronomers in the eclipse of the moon which took place early this morning was not in any feature of the moon or even of the sun. It was directed instead to a feature of the earth. The moon was kind enough to serve for a brief interval as a screen held up in space upon which the shadow of our earth could fall, as shadows of impossible animals fell upon the hung-up bed sheet in the old-fashioned parlor game of making shadow pictures in front of a lamp. Through the kindness of our satellite in placing itself properly to receive these shadows important information has been acquired, it is hoped, not about the moon, but about the atmosphere of the earth.

The earth has a long, pointed tail extending off through space—a tail of shadow. If the sun were but a single point of light this shadow of the earth would be an enlarging cone, hiding the sun from an ever increasing cross-section of space as the distance of the observer increased.

But the sun is not a point of light; instead it is far larger than the earth. Accordingly, the earth's shadow as it passes through space is a decreasing cone, like the shadow of a quarter held up in front of the frosted globe of an electric lamp. In both these instances the cone of shadow has two parts—an inner cone where the shadow is dense and the eclipse complete, and an outer cone, in which the shadow is only partial.

In the old game of shadow pictures the sharpest images were formed, as every one remembers, when the lamp was small. A large lamp made a blurred shadow, the edges of which were hidden only partially from the light. The sun is a very large lamp in comparison with the earth, and it casts a shadow similarly blurred.

Furthermore, the earth does not have a sharp edge like a quarter. It is surrounded by some three hundred miles of atmosphere. Through this gas the sun's rays shine imperfectly, but they do shine. Accordingly, the edge of the shadow which the earth cast this morning on the convenient screen of the moon was a blurred edge. The amount and character of that blurring were observed by astronomers wherever the skies were clear. They will tell us something of the earth's atmosphere to which the effect was due.

It is actually easier to observe some of the characteristics of our own air by looking then at the moon than to determine these characteristics directly with aeroplanes or balloons. It will be some weeks, of course, before the records of this morning's observations have been compiled and studied. The shadow picture is over; the screen has been moved away; now the children must try to imagine what the shadows meant.—New York Herald Tribune, June 15.

SARAJEVO RECALLED.

The high tone adopted by the Russian government in its note to Poland apropos of the assassination of the Russian minister at Warsaw almost inevitably calls to mind the still more truculent and overbearing note, or ultimatum, addressed by Austria-Hungary to Servia in reference to the murder of the Archduke Ferdinand at Sarajevo in July, 1913. It will be recalled that the latter crime was committed by an Austrian subject on Austrian soil and that Servian responsibility, so far as the outside world could judge, was much less than that of the government which, with apparent deliberation, neglected all the usual measures of precaution for the heir to the throne and seemed to court some sort of violence. When this followed Austria, to the amazement and indignation of nearly all other nations, demanded of Servia a degree of abasement that involved nothing less than a surrender of national sovereignty. It was the refusal of the smaller country to comply with the insufferably arrogant terms imposed that led to the World war.

Nothing has developed that shows that Poland was in any way remiss in its protection of the Russian minister or that the murder of that official by an unbalanced Russian boy was a crime that might not happen at any time in any country. The assassin apparently had no fellow conspirators, and his act was solely due to his own disordered brain. But the note addressed by Moscow to Poland scolds that government as though it had been most negligent in its duties and makes demands, such as that a Russian be permitted to witness the inquest, which recalls the insolent tone of Austria to Servia. Of course, there will be no war over this painful incident. Reference is made to it simply because it suggests the thought that by some minds, especially those of Russian communists, the tragic lessons of 1914-18 have already been forgotten. This is especially remarkable in the case of Russia, because of all the nations engaged in that long horror the land of the Muscovites seems to have suffered most. Now the amateur politicians of the Bolsheviste are as bellicose as were the aristocratic imperialists of the once proud Dual monarchy.—Philadelphia Record.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Samuel Johnson used to say that knowledge is of two kinds. We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information about it.

The principal thing education does for a man is to show him how and where he can get information upon a subject. An education is a set of tools which makes it possible to break into many things.

Dr. Caroline Hedger, of Chicago, lecturing to farmers' wives, says the first-born child is not as good as the fourth. Perfect children, she says, are from the fourth to the eighth. She says parents don't know how to bring up the first child. Sounds interesting, but Dr. Hedger will have to explain away a lot of facts. Some of the great men of history have been the first born.

Diplomats fear war between England and Russia. War will not be so easily brought on as it once was. It used to be a game around a table, arranged and played by diplomats. The people will have more to say about the next war. Public memory is short, but it is not short enough to have lost the lesson which the death of eighteen million men made vivid.

Recently we have been celebrating Memorial day. It is important to pay honor to the survivors of the wars which have helped to build and hold together this nation. It is important to pay honor to those who did not come back from the sacrifice—to those who went all the way. But it is more important than all that we should see to it, by our national and personal policies, that those who died shall not have died for nothing.—Copyright, 1927.

Dinner Stories.

Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, enjoys telling how he walked briskly into the foyer of a large Washington hotel and stopped for a moment to speak with one of the bright-buttoned bellboys in the lobby. After he walked on, an assistant manager, who had noted the incident, went over to the boy and said:

"What did the ambassador want?"

"I don't know," replied the bellhop. "He couldn't speak English."

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, June 17—Thoughts while strolling: A parrot in a mansion window pecking at a lifted foot. Nothing can look so bored as a parrot. Those low glossy bijoulike cars for poor little rich girls. Handbags that resemble stuffed puppies.

Persian cats with golden bells and jeweled clappers. Girls leaving shampoo parlors, like Venus from clean waves. Richly dressed and no place to go. Those cold-looking, impersonal Gold Coast doctors with Vandykes and lapel roses.

An amorous old baron who has had three American wives and is apparently searching for the fourth. Door-tenders sullen in suffocating broadcloth. The nouveau rich in castles—just a few years removed from shacks on the hillside.

The senile dreariness of those ancient brownstone fronts. Women's hats now shaped like helmets. Tiny court yards with backless benches. Fat caretakers coming out of airless basements to cool off. Lazy dogs twitching in the searing sun.

The sooty smudge of a garage-lined street. Glib mechanicians who seem so self-assured. And rheumatic old car washers. Gaudy night clubs peeping through the oily smear. And a sprinkling of Italians in spats who look suspiciously like bootleggers.

A plump youth in white flannels cooling himself with a palm leaf fan. Deserted tea rooms. Why do red-headed women wear pink? Never see freckles any more. Chunks of dwindling ice in delicatessen windows. Chorus girls gasping on theater fire-escapes.

A flash of lightning, threads of rain and the sweltering town heaves a collective sigh. Taxicab drivers scan clouds hopefully. Tired women burdened with bright bargains scuttle towards the terminals. And the sun glares out again.

It is beyond dispute that many beautiful women have grown drawn and ugly as the result of enforced starvation. The process was unnatural and results in some instances were quite disastrous.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

DR. THEODORE G. SOARES.

Theodore Gerald Soares was born at Abridge, Essex, England, October 1, 1869. He studied for the ministry, was ordained in 1894, became professor of homiletics in 1906 at the University of Chicago. In 1908 he became professor of homiletics and religious education and head of the department of practical theology at the university. During the World war Dr. Soares was in France for the Y. M. C. A., speaking at the United States training camps overseas in 1918. He is the author of many volumes on theology and a contributor to Biblical and educational dictionaries.

Dr. Soares holds that right and wrong are not settled by tradition, but by examination of the social consequences of conduct. This is the way he puts it:

"Morality is not following rules, but appreciating social relationships.

"Many people think that if we could teach the Ten commandments to our children we would solve our moral problems. The first question you ask about one of the commandments is: 'What does it mean?' 'Thou shalt not steal' seems clear enough, but what is stealing? Is it stealing if you do less than a day's work for a day's pay? Is it stealing if you form a trust and force up prices? Perhaps we need some definitions of honesty. Legal precedents may not settle moralities.

"The question is whether society has become so complex, commercialized vice so dangerous, the necessity of sobriety so vital, the lawlessness of the liquor traffic so inevitable that the time has come to make the elimination of alcoholic beverages a new morality. One of the greatest social experiments in the history of civilization is being tried. Shall we give it a chance?

"Right and wrong are not settled by tradition, but by an examination of the social consequences of conduct. The good man is he who is looking eagerly to find out the new duties which the new day demands. The bad man is behind the times."

-o- The New Book -o-

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

WITH the publication of "Twilight Sleep," Edith Wharton has again, only temporarily, claimed the attention of a vast reading public—and this time with another of her fascinating novels of present-day New York life. Mrs Wharton particularly enjoys and writes peculiarly capable of writing about a certain class of people—and a certain type of life, the turbulence and unrest of New York, and the restless, rolling type of people, ever busy making themselves prominent, conspicuous flaunting their wealth and ability—the kind of people so often mistaken for the "higher class," the genuine aristocracy.

Just such a woman was Pauline Manford in Mrs. Wharton's newest novel—ignorant of the true value of life—always passing it by in her quest for "beauty," "harmony" and philanthropic pursuits. Mrs. Manford's days were devoted to anxious social planning with her secretary, the marcels, manicures, exercising of the socially prominent woman's life, the responsibilities of speech-making, office-holding in the leagues formed by disengaged, wealthy New York women, and to the growing of new creeds and thoughts, for the purpose of surrounding herself in a more desirable atmosphere Mrs. Manford, with nonchalant indifference, had cast aside her first husband for a second, who has a more brilliant future before him, is more addicted to the mode of living. Mrs. Manford is one of the many of the present day life who thinks life a byway to be traversed with all ease and comfort possible.

The two husbands are an interseting contrast, Arthur Wyant, representing the older, more dignified New York, refining on the best of terms with the wife who had left him in quest of greater opportunities; and Dexter Manford, the second husband, a brilliant lawyer, inclined to a cynical attitude toward life, having become disgusted with its monotony.

Nona Manford, daughter of Mrs. Manford's second marriage, has all the characteristics of the truly worthwhile girl, but little opportunity to use them. Her attitude toward her mother and her mother's unceasing round of activity is one of good-natured indifference. Her main problem in life is her half-brother, Jim Wyant, of much the same caliber as Nona but of less character, whose marriage to a young woman of the jazz-crazed, unreliable variety, but for Nona's solicitude, might have proved his undoing. Nona's story is a sad one, unknown to her parents, who are, however, wholly incapable of understanding, she lives a life of tragedy and is disappointed in love, in the people with whom she lives, in her very self—the words with which the book closes.

Life's drama's realities, are thrust upon this odd little family, accepted and understood by Nona, acknowledged but placed on more capable, willing shoulders by Mrs. Manford.

Mrs. Wharton's new novel is indeed a clever irony, but only of a portion of life, one small group or class of people who go to make up a universe of nonconforming personalities, varied characters.

The majority of Mrs. Wharton's splendidly-written, absorbing novels deal with New York life, in "The Age of Innocence," New York society in the '70s was typified; in "The Glimpses of the Moon," the younger generation of New York society, a young married couple of the "smart set" and their problems were introduced; in "The Mother's Recompense," one is again in a New York atmosphere surrounded by typical New Yorkers keenly presented by Mrs. Wharton.

Although not her best novel from a technical standpoint nor yet in character portrayal, "Twilight Sleep" is certainly one of Mrs. Wharton's most interesting books. For her "The Age of Innocence," she was awarded the $1,000 Pulitzer prize by Columbia University in 1921, one of the highest honors to be conferred on an American writer.

Not the least of her writings are her short stories, of which a book of six was recently published under the title "Here and Beyond." Her earlier short stories are more typical, more commendable, more rich in portrayal of character, in the revelation of truths of life and human nature.

LINDBERGH BOOK VERY INTERESTING

In "Charles Lindbergh, His Life," the Appleton Publishing Co. has produced a narrative of outstanding interest. The wealth of material used by the United Press in spreading abroad every available trace of information regarding the internationally-known hero, has been gathered together into book form by Dale Van Every and Morris De Haven Tracy. Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press Association, contributed an appropriate introduction to the book.

Together with tales of the hero's life, of the time when he used to sit on a bicycle seat attached to the top of a tree and dream of flying, through the time of his great achievement, are a number of beautiful illustrations, picturing "Lindy" as a young boy with his mother, as a youth with his father, during the war, and in the midst of his recent triumph.

Manuscript of the book was received by the publishers at noon Monday, June 6, and stock of the manufactured book was delivered June 9. Three days—record-breaking time in the annals of book manufacturing.

GEORGE A. DORSEY VERSATILE PERSON

George A Dorsey, whose new biography, "The Evolution of Charles Darwin," was published by Doubleday, Page & Co., recently, is a versatile person. His first job was to teach Latin, German, algebra and history, serve as librarian and ask the blessing in a girls' college. It is doubtless there that he began his research as to why people behave like human beings.

EVANGELIST ADDRESSES KIWANIS CLUB MEMBERS

Rev. W. E. Petticord Speaks on "Ideal Citizenrie" During Luncheon at Harding

"Ideal Citizenrie," a term coined by the late President Harding during his last trip across the United States, was the subject of a talk by Rev. W. E. Petticord of the Petticord Evangelistic party, before the members of the Kiwanis Club at the luncheon at Hotel Harding yesterday.

A group of songs, "Going Home," "For You Alone," "Mother Machree" and "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," given by William E. Campbell, soloist of the Petticord party, accompanied on the piano by C. F. Kelley provided a very pleasing feature of the program.

"Ideal Citizenrie," as used in his address by President Harding was compared to a four cylinder engine, by the speaker. One cylinder representing the intellectual, one the social, one the physical and, fourth, the spiritual phases of life. An engine can run after a fashion, on one, two or three cylinders, the speaker said, but a full power is not possible without the fourth.

Development Urged

The need of social development to meet the need of the hour was urged by the speaker. The fact that men and women will gather for the purpose of dancing or other amusements shows the presence of a social cylinder that, to be kept clean and bright, must receive development that will meet the need of the hour, the speaker said.

The need of physical development is being amply taken care of in the United States. It was pointed out by the speaker that in many universities, a place on the football team has become the coveted goal, instead of a high place in studies. A closer attention to eugenics with the thought of giving every child a 50-50 chance in the world, was urged by Reverend Petticord.

The vital need of religious study in the home was emphasized by the speaker. As proof of such a need, he pointed to figures given by a New York judge who said 90 per cent of the boys and girls who were sent to the various reform institutions, came from homes in which there was no religious training.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—Adv.

Do You Drink Hot Water Every Morning?

It's a good habit—A healthy habit
Keep it up—but here's a tip for you.

You can double the efficiency of the hot water habit by dropping in two tablets of Kruschen Salts every morning. Try it and see.

Kruschen Salts is not a Cathartic—not even a laxative—but, oh Boy—after a week with two Kruschen Salts Tablets in your hot water every morning, you'll begin to realize that you never before knew what real joyous health was.

Millions of men and women, the world over, take their little daily dose of Kruschen in the morning. Some take it in tea—others in coffee—and legions take it in hot water.

Suit yourself—the result is the same. If you want to keep your bowels regular—keep the kidneys and liver working splendidly, start the Kruschen habit tomorrow morning. A week's trial will convince you—no poisons get into the blood stream when you take Kruschen daily—it's the little daily dose that does it. 60 Tablets—60 cents at Bradley's Drug Store or any druggist anywhere on earth.—Adv.

NEAT, SNAPPY FOR WORK, REST

You can't catch the modern woman napping. So untiringly has she been drilled in the thought that she must look well, not only while on parade, but always, and so much does her own inclination incline to this rule, that all of the twenty-four hours find her daintily clothed, neat and snappy.

It is not new to say that American's business women are the best dressed in the world, but it is undoubtedly true. On the left above is a chic suit for business or street wear. It is a three-piece of flat crepe with a pleated skirt and a white crepe de chine blouse with high neck. Perfect tailoring makes this suit a model of its kind.

For lounging hours, those who cannot afford a picturesque pajama suit lie the one (right) above, make up their mind that as soon as possible they will have one, for nothing is quite so swanky. The one shown here is oriental in the extreme, with a robe of Chinese red satin embroidered elaborately in white, and white trousers. The slippers, incidentally, match the robe. Anna May Wong posed.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

...a terrific report and again the ...alyptus shook, nearly unseating ...then sounded a noise as of a ...me mad of a thousand devils in ...agony. He heard a loud, thump- ...d and a snarling, wailing cry st... ...of the tree. Now arose a thresh- ...churning that might have come ...a pair of dinasauri in deadly com- ...and drawing forth another piece of ...e he slid a yard down the tree ...truck another match, shielding it ...throw the light downward.

...saw the tiger, with a portion of ...head blown away, thumping about ...ground. Its head as down, as ...weighted with the burden of a ...years; as though it could not ... He realized that the beast was ...ing in the throes of death, yet, liv- ...up to its nature, was dying hard. ...was conceivable that this giant bulk, in its final agonies, might shake him from the tree, might even crash the slender trunk to earth.

Now the great beast was sinking to its side, the eye that remained unharmed fast losing its brilliant, vivid green. He saw the rump stay up to the last, then, before the match died, he saw the beast collapse suppinely and lay still. For an hour he held to his perch, ears alert for the slightest sound below, distrustful that even the terrific bombardment he had poured on the tiger had finally killed it.

At the end of that time the low-hanging golden moon crept up over the eastern Atlas and its fiery, slanting beams sent little slivers of liquid silver through the forest, giving the trees and undergrowth an elusive, goblin appearance that while beautiful was also a little fearful. As the beams lengthened and grew stronger he made out the tiger and saw that it had not moved from its last collapse.

Coolly, but cautiously, he descended from the tree and stepped to the side of the giant beast. With his feet he turned the great head slightly and was startled at the damage his charge of dynamite had inflicted. The lower jaw, one side of the head, even the eye and ear, had been blown away, allowing the gray-tinged brain to ooze from the skull; and despite this awful wound, the tiger had not died soon—in fact, only his second dynamite shot had put the final quietus on it.

On the spur of the moment he drew his long Moorish knife from his sash and with a quick, sharp stroke clipped off the dead beast's good ear, close to the head. The brute had been dead so long by now that the piece of silken skin did not bleed. He tucked it beneath his burnouse, then, swinging his sword to a more comfortsbie position, found the pathway, gleaming dimly in the moonlight, and resumed his journey.

As he went on the moon rose higher and finally it stood straight over him. He imagined it had not risen until nine or after, and that by now it probably was around three in the morning. He felt no fatigue, no desire for sleep. Thoughts of Benna filling his mind nothing else could gain foothold in his brain.

After a time the trees grew thinner and he saw far ahead, how many miles distant it would have been impossible to judge, a needle-like peak standing against the moon-bathed horizon. His way seemed to be leading directly toward this. Suddenly, it seemed that the peak had sprung into flame, as though a fiery volcano had broken from the very crest of the sharp point.

He paused, startled and wondering, then realized that here was no volcano, but a man-made light; but for all that a most mysterious light. Brilliantly red, it rose and died, went out briefly, then flicked into life again, for all the world like a giant eye that was winking at him sardonically. Something about the shape of the light, and its color, too, seemed familiar and he found himself puzzling over what this resemblance could be. But he could lose no time dreaming here over a mysterious light; he was seeking Benna. He moved onward again.

He was heading straight toward the light and as he traveled its fiery, red beams swelled and died, winked out briefly, then flared again. He wondered if it were to continue indefinitely, and what its object was. Then it died out utterly and only the brilliant glow of the now waning moon lit the scene—a scene that was the epitome of gloom and mystery.

He imagined he could hear soft voices calling out there in the night, on either hand, then cursed himself for a fool, chiding himself that he had not recognized on the instant the lazy tones of the osprey or the more guttural voices of the lapwings. Steadily, he went ahead.

Now, when he was beginning to forget the light, it sprung up again, brighter, deeper in its brilliant redness. The moon was now a sickly thing that barely lingered in the west, and he had the curious feeling that comes to all men who are up at night, just before the dawn. He found himself speculating on whether the red Moroccon sun would be topping the distant mountain peaks in two hours or three.

Now the light on the peak flared brilliantly again, literally sending a crimson streak through the gathering of the darkness that comes in that space of time when the moon has set and the sun has not yet risen—the hour or two that precedes the dawn. Looking at it, Larry found it blinded his eyes and he raised his left hand to shield his orbs.

With the motion his hand seemed to catch on fire, literally to blaze with a crimson flame. Startled, he jerked his hand back, then gasped in realization.

The ring on his finger! The Eye of the Prophet!

Boldly he stuck his hand forth, the stone in the ring turned fairly toward the light on the peak. And he found the ring a living mirror in which all the fantasies of the greater light were reflected. As the light on the peak flared and ebbed, so did the ring, and when the greater light dulled and seemed to throb like blood pulsing through a beating heart, the ring on his finger dulled and throbbed in unison. Curiously, as he continued to walk onward, he watched this phenomena, and somehow came to feel that here was something he had discovered; that there was some direct connection between the ring on his finger and the mysterious light on the peak.

He wondered what the connection could be, what it could mean. Now the light on the distant silver of the mountain flared, high, thrice, and thrice it died out to nothing, and thrice the ring reflected the flare and the subsequent darkness. After the third flare the light was gone and remained blanketed. The ring now reflected only the last dying effort of the pale, sickly western moon, battling to maintain its dignity.

He realized that his arm was tired from having held it out so long and he let it drop at his side, grateful for the rest. Still he journeyed onward, walking rapidly. But the toll of his night's endeavors was beginning to tell on him and he knew that soon he would have to half for food and rest. It would be both senseless and useless to wear himself down to a weakling seeking Benna for should he so do, and then find her with his great body weakened, his mighty muscles sapped of their strength, he would be of little avail in a fight, if it came down to one, whether with the marabouts or with a slave soldier who might be guarding the country of the holy men.

The moon gave up its fight and dipped from sight. Once more it became dark and the woods were eerie. To Larry's racked nerves and worn body, to his tired and weary brain, it seemed more than ever that goblins strode among the trees and made fiery all the countryside. He wonderd if he would ever find human habitation in this wilderness, then stopped short, for he had almost fallen over a crouching, salaaming figure in the pathway before him!

Startled, his hand dropped to his sword, then, seeing the fellow remained in an attitude of supplication or homage— he was not sure which—he drew back a pace pondering. It was too early for the fedjr, the time of prayer at dawn, so the kneeling man could not be at his prayers. Larry spoke, using the familiar guttural Chleuh of the hills:

"Why kneel there, Unknown One? Arise, that I may pass."

"Al, wizard, may Allah bless you that you bade me rise and did not strike my unworthy head from my shoulders with the long sword that hangs at your side. You have been long in coming, but I praise Allah, you are here."

Here was more mystery. Evidently, Larry thought, he had been mistaken for another. He knitted his brow in puzzled thought; they could not be expecting the Marabout of Adrar, surely, and at the worst this fellow could never have mistaken him for that ancient and emaciated giant of a schemer. He decided to risk a chance shot:

"And how did you recognize me?"

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Accepts

LILLIAN instantly caught my cue and tossed it back to me.

"That sounds most intriguing," she said, "especially the part about the work. I have something that I ought to finish today, but you know that drawing board of mine. You might as well propose to pack a baby elephant into the car. But tell me, first, who's throwing this party? You know I'm not the twin sister to that colored damsel who answered a telephoned proposal of marriage with the answer, 'Yaas, I'll marry yoh. Who is this, please?'"

It is impossible not to laugh at Lillian's nonsense, and as Mr. Veritson saw my mirth he crossed to me and smilingly took the receiver from my hands.

"It is your old friend P. V. who is throwing this party," he said, and I felt my cheeks flaming as I realized that his keen ears had heard what Lillian's voice, with its peculiar carrying quality had said to me. Most vividly did I remember her first sentence to me, with its flippant query: "Is the lifeboat needed?" I knew my employer's quick perceptions far too well not to realize Lillian's reference and was cognizant of my appeal to her for aid in just such a dilemma as the one his invitation had given me.

My chigrin deepened the next second when Lillian's voice answered him in words that were distinctly audible to me, standing the same relative distance from Mr. Veritson as he had stood from me during my own conversation with my old friend.

"You don't need to say any more," she assured him with decision. "I'll be on hand. Your morals and your temper have always room for improvement, but your parties can't be tied in New York or any compass point radiating therefrom."

"My appreciation is bounded only by the limitations of your compliment," Mr. Veritson told her, with a wry little grin, ostensibly for my benefit, although I guessed that one dark of her apparently jesting comment had sharply penetrated his complacency. "Now, about that drawing board of yours—do you mind giving me its dimensions?"

If Lillian guessed that he had heard her side of the telephoned conversation with me she gave no sign of her knowledge, but answered his questions promptly and coolly. Mr. Veritson jotted the measurements down.

"How soon will you be ready to accompany us?" he asked.

"How soon can you be at my door?" she countered.

With a glance at his watch, Mr. Veritson made a hasty calculation.

"If Otto is as prompt as usual, in about twenty minutes from now," he said.

"Then I'll be ready to start in about twenty minutes, she responded. "But I can't waste any more time talking, even to you, so au revoir."

Mr. Veritson turned to me smiling. "I'm sure there's no need to repeat Mrs. Underwood's side of that conversation to you," he said. "It must have been perfectly audible to you. I never have known a voice with such a peculiar carrying quality over the telephone as hers."

Again I felt the blood rush into my cheeks with the knowledge which I well knew he meant to give me—that he also had heard Lillian's comment to me concerning himself. But to my great relief he turned back to his desk, struck a bell, and one of the girls in the outer office came noiselessly into the room.

"My chauffeur must be waiting downstairs," he said. "Will you please ask Henderson to go down and send Otto up to me. Ask Henderson to stay down near the car until Otto returns."

SUFFERED WITH ITCHY PIMPLES

On Face For Six Months. Healed by Cuticura.

"I suffered about six months with pimples that broke out on my face. They were hard, red and hurt badly when they first broke out. The pimples were scattered and festered and burned, and the skin around them was red.

"I tried different remedies which did not help me. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few weeks there was a great improvement. I continued using them and in about two months there was no trace of the pimples. I was healed." (Signed) Miss Gussie Ringer, 1301 Ferndale Rd., Canton, Ohio, Aug. 19, 1926.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are ideal for daily toilet uses.

Explores Borneo

Eugene P. F. Wright, above, of Rutherford, N. J., has returned from an expedition into the native haunts of the head hunters of Dutch Borneo with Corey Ford, of Larchmont, N. J. The two youths, former students at Columbia university, are said to be the first white men to penetrate the district and remain to establish friendly relations with the natives. Wright's father, Hamilton M. Wright, made an extensive exploration of the Philippines 20 years ago.

Night Life IN Paris

PARIS, June 17—Tourists journeying to Paris this summer with ideas of spacious night-clubs and quarts of cheap champagne floating in the back of their minds are doomed to disappointment.

There is no available dance space in all the city of Paris.

Not one popular night club has more than a few feet of dance floor to accommodate hundreds of customers. Tables are added until it is impossible to see the space reserved for dancing. A not too excellent brand of champagne is $12.00 and sometimes $14.00 a bottle and, thanks to an observant waiter many of them are consumed. Prices compare with those in other large cities.

American negro jazz is a feature of the well-known cabarets. Foreigners flock to Montmarte to witness the alleged night life of Paris and find there other tourists ,and an assortment of sleek-haired South American and shiny-headed Germans.

The newly opened Ambassadeurs in the Champs Elysees boasts an all-American show, music and songs.

Dancing is possible here but the high prices make it prohibitive for the average traveler.

EAU-DE-COLOGNE cocktails are the most recent European invention.

An internationally known maker of perfumes has intensified his eau-de-cologne to such a degree that it serves as an excellent base for all sorts of cocktails. The new formula has the maximum of alcohol and the minimum of perfume. Europe scorns this novel drink but cases are packed and appreciated on foreign shores.

The perfume manufacturer is said to have dedicated his new product to "those unfortunates who cannot drink in peace."

Paris fashion centers are crowded with quaintly dressed children on their way to churches and cathedrals to take their first communions.

This is the Holy Communion season and the streets are picturesque with little girls in long skirts and sleeves, flowing veils and high necks. The boys wear black suits with long trousers and big white bows on their arms.

Communion day is always celebrated by a big fete in French families. All the relatives and friends gather to do honor to the child, for this one day, at least.

AS France is famed for her delicious wine, so she is renowned for her exquisite perfume.

The Saloon of perfumes, at the Palais de Glace, is a most interesting exhibit. All the well-known marks of scent are displayed in attractively arranged booths. The air is balmy with the mixture of hundreds of perfumes. Samples of the latest perfume fads are given away in amusing bottles. This is the first Salon of the kind ever held in France. Every afternoon until June 15th mannequin parades will be held, and an interesting innovation will be the displays on the art of "making up."

"PERSONS are requested not to hold unhourous or indecent conversations over this telephone" reads a sign in a telephone booth in a prominent hotel near the Etoile. Why the hotel found this warning necessary is a question asked daily. The managers refuse to disclose the nationality of the offenders.

THE great majority of American travelers abroad are women who lose no time in joining the annual tourist invasion of Paris.

No longer is it necessary for women to have cavaliers to show them the city by night. Escorts are non-essential in the gay French capital, where women have independence in fact and not in theory.

Although many women plan trips to Europe primarily for shopping orgies, there are thousands of others who buy little in order to make Paris their headquarters for as long a stay as possible. Many widows and "Old Maids" make their homes in Paris the year round. Because the price of living is on a lower scale and intellectual opportunities are greater, women prefer France to their native America.

Statistics from a recent incoming liner show that 75 women were landed at Cherbourg and only 12 men. Fifty of the 75 women were New England spinsters.

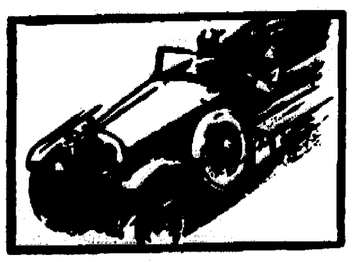
Acosta and Chamberlin in their recent 51 hour endurance flight chose Pennzoil. The designer of the plane said of Pennzoil. "It's the finest oil I ever saw coming out of a plane after a long flight."

Lucky Strike Second covered 126 miles in the Sacramento River in 2 hours, 23 minutes, 45 seconds, breaking all previous records. Pennzoil furnished unfailing lubrication to Lucky Strike's 400 H. P. Liberty motor.



3471 miles between New York and San Francisco covered in 86 hours, 20 minutes. That's the sterling achievement of Jenkins and Peak in their Studebaker Sheriff. Only 11 quarts of Pennzoil were used and the oil was not changed once throughout the trip.

HERE'S good news for every motorist who takes pride in the performance of his car. It means that the highest grade of lubrication service now is available to you.

It's a fact that Pennzoil is the finest oil you can buy for your motor. It holds its body—its lubricating value—for hundreds of miles longer than ordinary oils. You need change it only half as often.

Pennzoil doesn't break down under intense heat. You can keep your motor going at high speed over long, continuous runs without worrying about lubrication—if you have a crankcase filling of Pennzoil.

That accounts for the widespread choice of Pennzoil when a motor is to be put to any gruelling test.

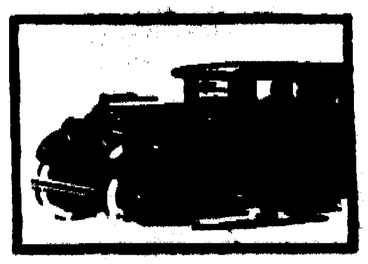
Pennzoil has made unbeatable records in airplanes—speed boats—racing cars—endurance runs—general automobile use. It has an unquestioned reputation of always furnishing safe, sure lubrication.

For your motor's sake use Pennzoil. You can't duplicate its quality—or its economy. The Pennzoil sign shows you where to get the best service. Look for it.

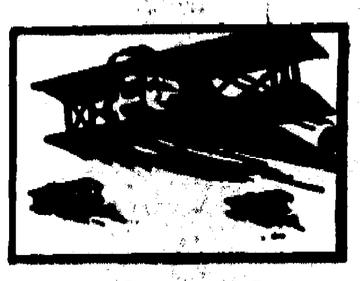
Test It Yourself

The condition of the oil as it flows OUT of your motor tells surely whether good oil was put IN. After using ordinary oil for 500 miles rub a drop or two of it between your fingers. Do the same thing with Pennzoil after using it a full 1000 miles. You can see the difference, and feel it.

Stop where you see the Pennzoil sign. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with Pennzoil. That's the way to play safe.



Three rebuilt chevrolets drove a Pontiac Six-60 sedan, for 31 days, covering 22,000 non-stop miles. The Pennzoil in the crankcase was never changed and only 10 quarts of Pennzoil were added—an average of 2200⅗ miles per quart of Pennzoil.



Lieutenants Kelly and McReady on their flamboyant non-stop flight across America; Commander John Rodgers on his flight to Honolulu in 1925; both chose Pennzoil for safe, sure lubrication.

Fliers Declare Lindbergh Has Rescued Aviation for U. S.

BIRDMEN HOLD RENDEZVOUS IN AIR AT DAYTON

Assert Youth Has Awakened Conscience of American People

With Lindbergh Army Air Escort Enroute to St. Louis, June 17 "Lindy has rescued aviation in the United States." The war birds of America—those men who will fight the next war in the skies—paid this tribute today to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, in recognition of his heroic conquest of the transatlantic ether.

While awaiting a rendezvous with Lindbergh in the skies above Dayton, Ohio, the cream of America's army birdmen declared Lindbergh had awakened the conscience of the American people to the necessity for a revival of aeronautics in America and the revival already has gotten under way.

"Lindy has given aviation a boost all over the country," observed Lieut. H. L. Tiny Harmon, who flew with the colors in army air training camps.

"The biggest kick army pilots get out of his feat is the fact that he left New York knowing that if he did get across the ocean he would land in Paris after dark on a perfectly strange field.

"Knowing the danger of such an effort aside from getting over the ocean he just went ahead and did it. That's what gets the pilots. And he's helped aviation everywhere. I know two boys who bought a commercial plane the day before Lindy landed in Paris. They paid for it out of their receipts in three days. It's the same now with all commercial aviation. Lindy has rescued it."

The same sentiment was expressed by Capt. Andrew W. Smith, the oldest and his comrades gathered around a mess table echoed "He sure did." To the army birdmen Lindbergh's feat came at a most opportune moment.

Awakens People

America first developed aviation they said and then allowed most of the great nations of the world to come along and surpass it in air strength. It was Lindy they added whose feat awakened the people to the necessity for a revival of aeronautics in America and the revival already has gotten under way.

"Lindy has given aviation a boost all over the country," observed Lieut. H. L. Tiny Harmon, who flew with the colors in army air training camps.

Crawford County Judge Acts to Tame Modern Jazz Dancing

ISSUES EDICT BARRING NOISY TUNES, HUGGING

Rules Against Flirters, Spooners, Flask Toters and Dancehall Rowdies

Bucyrus, June 17 – Old fashioned waltzes with their prim stiffness and the famous, forgotten two-step the one with the sweeping turns will be revived to universal popularity in this county quicker than it takes to say "Jack Rabbit" if the words and edicts of Probate Judge G. W. Sheetz are accepted by the multitudes as being a sacred and infallible law.

Continuing his campaign on the alleged vice of the present day public dance, Judge Sheetz yesterday issued permits to dance hall operators in the county stipulating very plainly—in black and white, as it were—that Sunday dances were not permitted and that certain restrictions were placed on the operation of the dance hall and dancing itself at all times.

Those certain restrictions are thorns in the side of the well known flirter, spooner, flask toter and rowdy, for its the conduct of such as these that Judge Sheetz opposes.

The local market on the cello and harp were expected to hit par after a long reactionary movement following Judge Sheetz's ban on "noisy jazz music." Tenor saxaphone and cornet mute values on the other hand were expected to collapse.

Gives Rules on Same

Judge Sheetz's brief discourse on the subject "How To Dance" follows: "The gentleman's arm shall encircle his partner's waist his arm resting on her spine, just above the waist line. The lady's arm should not encircle the gentleman's shoulder or neck. The proper dancing step should be the same as the natural walking step except in exhibition dancing. Dancers are not permitted to take either exceptionally long or short steps."

Children under 18 years of age may not attend dances unaccompanied by their parents or guardian, the judge stated.

Effective At Once

New rulings affecting public dances go into effect at once and dancing will not be permitted in the county next Sunday. Ralph Jolly, Seccalum Park dance hall proprietor, most affected of operators in this county, has previously stated that all orders of Judge Sheetz will be obeyed. Enforcement of the rules is left in the hands of the operators. Their failure to observe the restrictions throws them liable to loss of their permits.

Further orders in the new permits provide for the halls to be kept in a clean and sanitary condition and that for all stairways and passageways to be kept well lighted at all times. Operators are given the right to refuse admittance to all patrons they so choose and are instructed to close their halls at 11:30 o'clock on all nights of operation.

GUARD PICKFORD HOME, FEAR KIDNAPING PLOT

Man Reports Trio Followed Mary, Said She Was Good for $100,000

Los Angeles, June 17—A heavily armed guard was stationed around the Beverly Hills home of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks today as the result of an alleged plot to kidnap the diminutive actress and hold her for $100,000 ransom.

The guard was thrown around the Pickford estate when H. L. Brady, of Palm Grove-av, reported seeing three men following Miss Pickford. He said the movie star had been posing for street scenes and that when she left in her car, the three men followed in a large sedan.

Brady said as the men passed him he overheard one of them remark:

"There she goes. She'll be worth $100,000 to us."

Hollywood and Beverly Hills police were notified and a guard was immediately thrown around Pickfair, the movie star's home. As she rode home last night from the studio, Douglas Fairbanks, her husband, sat beside her with a riot gun in his lap. Several officers on motorcycles followed a short distance behind the car.

COOLIDGE GOES TO RAPID CITY FOR INTERVIEW

President Reverses Original Order and Postpones His Fishing

Rapid City, S. D., June 17—It was a case of the mountain coming to Mahomet today—if the newspaper men covering President Coolidge in his Black Hills summer White House may be called prophets.

Reversing the original order wherein the press representatives motor 32 miles from Rapid City to the state game lodge to cover the president's vacation activities and then motor 32 miles back to file the story, Mr. Coolidge agreed to come to the temporary executive offices at Rapid City this morning and submit himself to an interview, subject to the usual restrictions.

Today's press conference will be held in the Rapid City High School in a room circled with blackboards—the executive's office during the summer. Adjoining class rooms house Secretary Everett Sanders, Private Secretary Edward T. Clark, Doorkeeper Pat McKenna, and the stenographers, clerks and messengers who were brought from Washington that the official business of the White House might progress as usual.

Cal Must Fish

Meanwhile, the presidential fishing will suffer until after lunch, to be served at the state game lodge at 1 o'clock. The lunch was to have been subordinated to a 2 o'clock press conference—mountain time—but Mrs. Coolidge put her foot down on this disruption of game lodge routine.

Fishing, mentioned above, was held over from Paul Smith's N. Y., as a Coolidge obsession. Yesterday, the president started his piscatorial efforts at 8 a. m., and following an interruption occasioned by an engagement with the movie men and inspection trip to his Rapid City offices, he returned to sidle a worm and hook into the rushing, shallow waters of Squaw Creek until dark.

RECEIVER TESTIFIES AGAINST JUDGE CLARK

Transfer of Bankrupt Company's Made with Permission, Krug Says

Cleveland, June 17—George H. Clark, former state supreme court justice and one time Republican state chairman, sanctioned the taking of merchandise from the stock of the bankrupt American Cycle Co., at Canton, without knowledge or consent of Don Krug, receiver for the concern, according to Krug's testimony in the hearing for Clark before Federal Judge D. Clark acted for attorney for Krug who had given him a key to the company's store. L. C. McGinley, of Akron, who bought the property of the defunct company, noticed on checking up, that some of the merchandise entered on the appraisal list was missing.

Part of this was located at the Hardware store operted by Judge Clark's son, John, witnesses have testified. Judge Clark claims that the property was worth only about $137 and that the transfer was made with the consent and knowledge of Krug, the receiver, and with the understanding that his son would pay the full appraised value.

The hearing will probably be terminated today or tomorrow and Judge Westenhaver will rule as to whether Judge Clark shall be disbarred from future practice before this federal court.

ENGINEERS PLANNING FO INDIVIDUAL AGREEMENT

Chicago Pact with Firemen and Enginemen Is Ordered Terminated

Cleveland, June 17 — According announcement by spokesmen for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers now in convention here, "individual agreements may be formed in the future with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, to supplant the "Chicago agreement," which was ordered terminated several days ago and dies automatically 30 days after the decree.

The "Chicago agreement" has served to hold the two brotherhoods together in their relations with railroad managements since 1913. Termination of the agreement will work no particular hardship, however, in the opinion of H. E. Wills, Washington, assistant grand chief engineer, one of the official spokesmen, who expressed the belief that differences could be adjusted better individually than through one national agreement.

Others declared however, that the action of the engineers might mean that the two unions will hereafter work independently of each other.

The split between the two bodies, it is believed to be an indirect result of the disagreements which came up last February, when the engineers, it is alleged, failed to act jointly with the firemen in wage negotiations with southeastern railroads.

prary Injunction Issued Adena Disturbances by Judge Hough

...ns, June 17—Miners of Sub-No. 5, United Mine Workers ...ica, today were under orders ...federal district court here ...ng them from interfering with ... of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., ...perations at Adena, Jefferson

...porary injunction was issued ...ral Judge Benson Hough on ... of attorneys for the local ... here late yesterday, as an ... of disturbances which have ... Adena during the past week, and which were climaxed by an appeal from the mayor of the town to Governor Donahey for state troops to maintain order.

Sheriff W. T. Allison of Jefferson County, however, denied to the governor that there was any serious disorders, said that troops were unnecessary, and indicated that he was in position to maintain complete order.

Hearing on Thursday

Hearing on a motion to make permanent the restraining order has been set for next Thursday, and it was indicated that attorneys representing the miners' union would appear in opposition.

Miners' union representatives and city officials of Adena were scheduled to confer today, in Steubenville, relative to the repeal of the Adena city ordinance prohibiting "loitering" by striking miners which the miners assert is unconstitutional, and which they have indicated they will fight in the courts unless repealed.

Officials of Adena are said by union officials to be employes of mining concerns, and this is blamed by them for what they assert are "exaggerated" reports of disorder in the village.

The issuance of the temporary injunction marks the first court action of the present mine strike in Ohio.

CHAMBERLIN AND LEVINE SURPRISE THEIR WIVES

Yankee Fliers Go Aboard Berlin as Soon as Steamship Docks

Bremerhaven, Germany, June 17—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, American transatlantic fliers, paid an early morning surprise visit to their wives today. Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine had arrived upon the liner Berlin which docked shortly before 1:30 o'clock, much earlier than had been expected. Immediately after the steamship docked the two airmen went on board. As their wives had not expected them until after daylight both were in bed in the cabins.

The meeting was the result of a careful conspiracy, for Chamberlin and Levine had gone to bed in Bremen, announcing that they would greet their wives in the morning. After the crowds had dispersed the two fliers left their Bremen Hotel and motored to Bremerhaven and boarded the Berlin.

"You poor darling," was Mrs. Chamberlin's greeting to her husband as he entered her stateroom.

"Oh you wonderful boy," was the salutation of Mrs. Levine.

Then the doors slammed and the rest of the welcoming was a purely personal affair.

Later the two wives were officially welcomed on the bridge of the Berlin by the mayor of Bremen and American Consul General Hurst of Berlin. Then the photographers had their innings also and Chamberlin and Levine kissed their wives 24 times for the benefit of the photographers, doing an osculatory parade march to the tempo set by the ships officers shouting, "One-two-three-kiss-one-two-three-kiss," with cameras clicking on the word "kiss."

SPORT SAUCE

BY EDDIE SCHOENLEB

MORE than 700 persons witnessed the first game of the Anthony Cleaners, Marion's representative recreational ball team, and the Delaware city team at Central Junior High, Wednesday night.

A check-up shows that approximately the same number saw the Marion Athletics trim the Millard Clothiers of Springfield, in the first baseball game of the season at Lincoln Park.

There are 19 scheduled recreational ball games in Marion each week and only one baseball game, yet the "kittenball" fracas draws the same number of spectators.

The large crowd at the game Wednesday is only another proof of the popularity of the soft ball craze in this city.

"SMOKY" JOE WILLIAMS, 51-year-old pitching star of the Homestead Grays, is scheduled for the firing line when that outfit meets the Marion Athletics here July 17.

Joe does not seem to lose any of his effectiveness as the years creep upon him, if his record so far this season is a criterion of the brand of pitching he serves to the many clubs he faces.

Fans can obtain an idea of the caliber of his hurling when they are told that he has had a total of 20 runs scored against him in 12 games. And no club has nipped him for more than four scores in one game. No team has gathered more than nine hits off him and he has twirled a pair of two-hit contests.

The Homestead Gray game is expected to be the biggest of the season at Lincoln Park.

WE see where Joe Ward, of Green Camp, brother of Cliff and one of Green Camp's basketball stars last season, is pitching on the Apprentice team at the Marion Steam Shovel. That means that the Apprentices will have more excellent material for basketball next season as well as for recreational ball during the remainder of this year.

CLARK, pitcher for the Marion Steam Shovel Office, is rapidly gaining fame on the mound. He has lost only one game in the Commercial League and we can't remember when he's been defeated in the American League at the Steam Shovel.

JUST as the Presbyterians get working together in the first Sunday School League, Matrin Verberg who has won his last two games on the mound for that crew, announces that he is leaving for camp next Tuesday and will not be with the team during the remainder of the season.

Dick McAninch will do the hurling for the Presbyterians but who will take Dick's place at shortstop has not yet been announced.

IT'S almost an even bet that the Epworth teams will be nearer the bottom than the top of the Sunday School leagues when the season's over, with nothing accomplished except the satisfaction of keeping the other teams in their church from doing anything. Well, anyway, they'll be satisfied, and that's something.

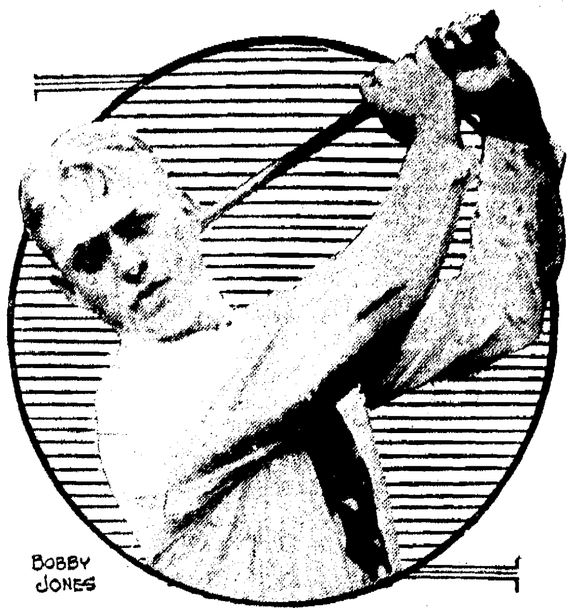
Cooper and Armour Tie for National Open Titl

GOLF MONARCH DETHRONED



BOBBY JONES

The greatest golf monarch of modern times, Bobby Jones, slipped from his National throne yesterday while Tommy Armour, pro of The Congressional Club at Rockville, Md., near Washington, and Harry Cooper, pro at the El Sereno Club of Los Angeles, tied for first place in the fight for the National Open title at Oakmont, Pa. Bobby was tied for eleventh place in the final standing, never striking his championship stride or menacing the leaders. His score for the 72 holes was 309.

Play-Off Today; Jones Is Tied With Hagen for Ninth; Sarazen Finishes Third

Sensational 12-Foot Putt Places Armour in Tie at Last Hole; Jones Never Menaces Leaders and Fails To Hit Championship Stride

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

OAKMONT, June 17—Harry Cooper, born to be British but glad to be American, a garrulous, confident Jock Sharkey of professional golf, and Tom Armour, suave, well mannered and Scotch enough to want what he wants before he gets it, will engage in a two-man assault on the National Open Golf Championship in a special 18-hole play off this afternoon. They finished the regulation four rounds of the championship yesterday in an absolute dead heat for first money with a composite total of 301.

It was their only similarity. They had the same score but probably no two men in the long history of competitive golf have met at the first tee with less in common.

"I'll walk back to Los Angeles if I don't finish in the first five," said Cooper with his air of swank as he came to Oakmont for the title event. He will ride.

Sensational Putt

Armour let a 12-foot putt on the 72nd green for a tie do his talking, although Thomas is no social mute. In truth. He is the typical club house verandah amateur, hair slick and smooth and black, face burned to the true skin by countless suns and clothes correct to a fault. Thomas "turned square" after coming to America as an amateur seven years ago but he still retains the air of one who does you a personal favor in letting you watch him play.

With all due respect to Cooper as a golfer, and as a man, he would be incapable of achieving such an impression. His emotions are too near the surface his reactions too natural. If he thinks you are a bum, he is likely to say as much and add the information, that he, personally and himself, usually is not a victim of self dissatisfaction.

Send Cooper into the ring with a niblick and Sharkey a boxing glove and Rickard would sell out on the sheer personality of his principals.

Play-Off Today

However, the boys promise to deal exclusively in mashies and niblicks and polite amenities today and there will be no blows exchanged as an official part of the program. If the U. S. G. A. could connive to have this happen the gallery might run into the fifty thousands with wicket speculators and short-end men hovering at the gates. As it is, five thousand will be a good crowd.

For neither of the principals ever has won a major title and they neither write for publication, recommend tooth-paste nor furnish the material for the usual club house gossip. They are just a pair of good golfers who happen to be better than Bobby Jones, greatest of all; Walter Hagen, who used to be; Gene Sarazen, Jock Hutchison, Jim Barnes and other ex-champions; the members of the invading British team and a great field in general.

Sarazen Third

Sarazen lasted well enough to finish third, only a stroke outside the tie but Barnes and Hutchison were nowhere and Hagen and Jones finished sixth and in a tie for ninth respectively. The old Hagen "kick" was gone at the finish where formerly it manifested itself with such devastating effect.

The boy friend hasn't won an American open championship since 1919 and some of the locker room coroners are beginning to suspect that it might be that he will never win another.

Jones simply was not good; he wasn't bad. Merely neither. He started with an unimpressive 76 and became less impressive with each succeeding round. Sarazen, Johnny Farrell and most of the entries who didn't win blamed their failure to score on the ever-zealous greens which were supposed to be too fast for comfort.

For the 72 greens he visited, he had 333 putts, considerably less than two to the green. Of course, a fast green may play havoc with your pitch shots in the first place and maybe that is what happened to Jones. A better guess is that he was under-prepared for the tournament and under-golfed.

Would Be Better

In 10 such tournaments, his total score possibly would be better by 15 to 20 strokes than that of either Cooper or Armour. But they were good enough to win this tournament and Jones wasn't and you can't go behind that fact any more than you can go behind your own shoulder blades.

Today's play off will be tenth in 31 open championship tournaments. I trust I may be pardoned for hoping it will be the last. The writer is for earlier and quicker victories.

TIED FOR TITLE

Tommy Armour

In as spectacular a finish as any battle of the links has ever witnessed, Tommy Armour, the Scotch star won professional of the Congressional Club at Rockville, Md., sank a 12-foot putt for a "birdie" three on the last hole of his final round yesterday to enter in a deadlock with Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, for the National Open Golf title.

Chicago Cubs Win Twelfth Straight Game, Bucs Repeat

NEW YORK, June 17—The Chicago Cubs today have won 12 straight games, the longest winning streak of the season in either league, but are still in second place because the weak eastern teams have been unable to stop the Pirates. The pennant prospects of the Bruins are enhanced, however, by the brilliant work of Pitcher Hal Carlson yesterday in winning his second successive game since joining the Windy City outfit. He subdued the Phillies, his former mates, by a score of 7 to 2 while strong men on the Philadelphia bench sobbed and their manager, Stuffy McInnes warbled, "Oh, how I miss you, dear old Hal of mine."

Informed that Col. Charley Lindbergh would be among the spectators, Babe Ruth and Buster Gehrig of the Yankees put on their home run act in the first inning, but unfortunately Charley did not reach the park until the game was finished. It was No. 22 for Ruth and 15 for Gehrig, and the Bambino is exactly even with his 1921 record. The score of the ball game was 8 to 1 and the Browns were the victims.

Hornsby Gets Homer

Homers by Hornsby and Terry featured the Giants' 10 to 5 victory over the Cardinals. The Giants had dropped six straight. Hornsby and Southworth had a perfect day at bat.

Kent Greenfield, formerly of the Giants, made his debut with the Braves and was given a proper shellacking by the Pirates, 6 to 0. Paul Waner, Pittsburgh's newlywed outfielder, stretched his consecutive hitting to 19 games. Meadows did the throwing and lots of it for Pittsburgh.

Dolf Luque of the Reds baffled the Robins and won 10 to 1. Overton Tremper, Penn collegian, came through with a hit in his first appearance with Brooklyn.

Sergeant George Connally, who has pitched 217 scoreless innings in the White Sox bullpen this season, turned in nine more against the Athletics. Homers by Hunnefield and Barrett gave the Sox the verdict, 4 to 0, increasing their hold on second place.

Lil Stoner of the Tigers hurled a mean horsehide against the Senators, allowing only four hits and breezing home to a 6 to 1 triumph.

The Red Sox turned in their weekly victory, nosing out Cleveland, 11 to 10, in a ding dong slugfest. Jamieson got four hits.

LITTLE RAVEN UPSETS "DOPE" AT MANSFIELD

Takes Three Heats of 2:13 Pace in Fast Time; Robert Etwah Wins

Little Raven, Buntain and Beaver's Wee Mare from Hillsboro, furnished the upset and feature for yesterday's Ohio Shortship meet at Mansfield. The mare took all three heats of the 2:13 pace in fast time.

Vic Fleming drove Robert Etwah, his North Randal stallion, home a winner in two straight heats of the 2:24 trot, finishing third in the final lap.

The only favorite of the day to come through was Trampsmug, Walter's Canton gelding. Trampsmug ran off with the 2:12 pace, coasting home easily in all three heats. Prue Gattan was second. The meet closes tomorrow. Summaries:

Sport Alphabet

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Despite the fact that he is an "ex" Jack Dempsey stands out as the most talked-of "D" in the sport Who's Who today.

Partly because of the fact that the world found it hard to believe Gene Tunney was master of the "real" Dempsey that night in Philadelphia.

Partly because of the fact that the boxing world now wants to see him in action again to find out if the "Manassa Mauler" was mostly a myth and his victims hams instead of real opponents. But mainly because he's coming back into the ring—devoid of colorful, popular fighters.

Among the other "D's" in sport might be mentioned—

Taylor Douthit of the Cardinals.

Johnny Dundee, the Tennyson's Brook of flatiana.

Bill Donk, one of the few remaining spitball pitchers in the game.

Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champ, whose stock as a fighter grows with each defeat.

Jimmy De Pablo, auto racer and champion driver of 1926.

George Duncan, British golf star.

Steve Donoghue, British jockey and six times winner of the British Derby.

William "Doc" McMillen, London race trainer and driver, in Mansfield this week, will move his stable to Marion following the meet in that city and will be here next week for the Ohio Short Ship Circuit meeting.

McMillen has 11 head in his stable this year including Wellworthy, 2:03 1-4; Simbel Jean Axworthy, Shadynma, Steve Watts, Peter Cowl, and Lady Count, all trotters, the last two named being three-year-olds; and the pacers, Miss Ellen W., Fred R., Red Cross, and Hal Maxey.

McMillen will go from here to the Grand Circuit races at Akron, which open the following week.

Disapproval signified in the home with sighs is as wearing as signified by cross words.

Heated Session Scheduled for Marion, Recreational Ball Commission Monday

THE Marion city recreational ball commission is going to hold another meeting Monday night. It's to get under way at 7:30 o'clock.

And, oh, what a meeting it will be!

It is rumored that they're clearing a special room at the Y. M. C. A. for the grand session and will bring in a few extra fire extinguishers for protection in case the atmosphere becomes overheated.

The gathering is booked as a meeting but they'll be lucky is it doesn't turn into a riot before the end. Because, among other things, there are two great arguments to settle, and these two directly involve at least five members of the commission, or teams managed by these members.

Lingo's Protest

First comes a discussion on a protest filed by Jim Lingo against John Clark's Epworth No. 1 outfit and then comes a talk on just why the Osgood-Steam Shovel Industrial League game was postponed a few weeks ago.

It seems that John Clark, who by the way, is president of the commission, used Clarence Snyder at first base on his Epworth No. 1 team the other night and Jim Lingo, manager of the Epworth No. 2 nine, was expecting to use him on his team instead.

Mr. Lingo had Snyder's name listed on his entries and was waiting for him to come back from college to play on Epworth No. 2. Mr. Clark evidently also wished to use Mr. Snyder and proceeded to do so without asking anybody's permission.

Epworth Wins

Clark's team defeated Calvary No. 1, one of the best teams in the first Sunday School league, with Snyder playing first base. It is said that Calvary No. 1 was "put wise" to the fact that Snyder was an alleged ineligible man but that team failed to file a protest.

But Jim Lingo did.

And now the question is to come up for discussion before the commission and the sparks will fly. We looked over the registered lists of members of each team today, with the secretary's permission, and found that in some mysterious manner, the name of Snyder had been scratched off Lingo's list and placed on Clark's group.

And when that's settled, the question of postponed Osgood-Steam Shovel game will be brought before the meeting. No protest has been made to the commission.

Violate Rules?

The matter will be brought before the commission by the secretary and probably will be cited as a violation of the rule which reads "All games shall be played as scheduled, unless prevented by rain, cold weather or wet grounds." It happens that the night the contest was postponed, the sun was shining and the grounds were in excellent condition.

Frank Thomas, manager of the Osgood team, and F. W. Bacon, manager of the Shovel team, are members of the commission.

When the war which is expected to rage while these two questions are being discussed, is called to an end, a number of other important problems will be brought before the commission.

It is expected that the meeting won't last later than midnight.

Chief Recalls Case of Donald Whetro In Citing Value of First Aid Methods

Lessons in modern methods of life-saving to be given members of the Marion fire department and to men in the various shops in the city, will be a part of the swimming and life-saving program to be conducted by Marion County American Red Cross this summer, it was announced this morning by Fire Chief McFarland.

As an impressive lesson of the value of a knowledge of life saving methods, the chief cited the case of Donald Whetro, a 11-year-old boy who, several years ago, had been revived, after he had gone down for the third time in Durfee Lake.

Freeman Near Scene

L. N. Freeman, then employed in the office at the Marion Steam Shovel plant, was standing on the S. Greenwood-st bridge over the stream connecting the King and Durfee Lakes, when he heard the cry of boys on the east side of Durfee Lake. Running around the lake he was told by the boys that one of their companions had fallen in the water. Throwing off his overcoat, coat and vest, Freeman dived into the water at the place pointed out by the boys, but was unable to find the body.

Returning to the shore he quieted the boys sufficiently to learn at just what point Donald was last seen, again diving into the ice cold water, he found the boy and brought him to the shore. Telling his companions to call the fire department for the pulmotor, Freeman who had been joined by William Stark, started to use the life-saving methods on the boy who had been in the water for three or four minutes.

Boy Fully Revived

When Fire Chief McFarland with several men from Central station arrived with the pulomotor, the boy was again breathing and later fully recovered from his experiences. An effort was made later to secure a Carnegie life saving medal for Freeman but unsuccessfully.

This incident in which the boy's life was saved by a knowledge of life saving methods, is held by the chief as a most valid reason for an interest in the lessons to be given by Jack Houghton this summer under the direction of the local Red Cross. Houghton will go to Culver, Ind., this week where he will take a post graduate course in life saving methods. Lessons on life saving will be given at Central fire station for the firemen and at the various shops throughout the city.

Inspirational Books

... a great deal in young peo... ...g inspirational books. It ... a world peopled with ...lt cultivates their imagina... ...gives them ideals. It ...st to err is human, to for... The story of Les Miserables by Victor Hugo inculcates into the mind a symphony for the unselfish; it is a fine thing in itself. The greatest story in American history, in my opinion, is the life of Abraham Lincoln. Then the gentle Washington, the whole trend of whose life might have been changed had he not given up an ocean voyage at his mother's request because she would have been lonesome without him.

It was during the time he would have been upon that voyage that he was given the position of surveyor. It was because he was a surveyor that he was given important work along that line during which time he learned the ways of the Indians.

When a peace was to be made with the Indians, it was Washington who was given that important mission. When the United Colonies decided to resist Great Britain, Washington was the man chosen to lead them.

Must Play Fair

The preparation he had gone through, the hardships he had suffered, made him the best qualified man to lead the American forces in the Revolution.

Surely every American boy who contemplates the lives of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln should have faith that if he prepares for the great things of life, he will have full opportunity of utilizing his talents.

I remember as a boy that the problem as it presented itself to me was this:

I had not been through college. My parents could not help me find a place in business. I wondered how I could succeed against the boy of education, money and influence. But I had faith that the game of life was conducted on the level, that everybody had a chance, that all men with two legs, two arms, two eyes, were physically equipped for a fairly even battle, and that the prizes must go to those who fought the hardest, had the most courage, and imagination, who in every contest conducted themselves like Monsieur Beaucaire who, you remember, played fair, always fair.

High Regard for Virtues

It is a great thing for young people to get it into their heads that everybody has a great chance and that if they haven't had the opportunity of an education and influence they can get practically all of that out of books. I believe any person who reads the Bible conscientiously and sympathetically will get a knowledge of the fundamentals that will equip him to meet the problems of life and solve them in right fashion.

So the message I want to bring to young people would be this:

Have high regard for the ample virtues—honesty, thrift, energy, clean living, high thinking.

Develop an innate culture, and you will find yourself with a clear head to meet all problems. And young men, remember this: Fight hard, as Roosevelt said, but never hit below the belt. Napoleon said success was the result of energy, system and perseverance. Edison said more success was due to perspiration than inspiration, but my recommendation to you calls for both inspiration and perspiration, and with that combination which can be the possession of any American boy who will avail himself of it, success in life is assured.

Behind the Screen

Dan Kelley.

IN these days of beauty culture, beauty & doctors and beauty contests, it might be worth while to pause for a minute to think just what beauty really means, since so much effort and time is being expended to attain it. Here are some expressions on feminine beauty from Dan Kelley, casting director of the First National Studios:

The American beauty of 1928 will be more beautiful than the 1927 girl, says Kelley. The 1930 American beauty will be even lovelier than the 1928 girl. And in 1940—well—words fail when it comes to picturing the charm and glory of the beauty of thirteen years from now.

But, says he, beauty, in itself, means less now in pictures than it ever has in the history of filmdom. Behind an exquisite face there must radiate a glow that will reflect more than regular features and peach bloom complexion.

Girls come into the studio office every day, says Kelley, seeking jobs in pictures. Frequently they are gorgeous—great eyes, lovely mouths, glorious forms—but with all that they lack that something indescribable, something that means real beauty, that radiates it and suggests it in expression, in movement, something elusive, undefinable, feminine—call it personality, if you like—but which means the real essence of beauty and is eagerly sought for in screen aspirants.

Many of the most popular stars in the business are not beautiful, but they have radiant screen possibilities, he continues, and this means they have souls that shine through their eyes.

Women, Kelley contends, will continue to develop beauty each year. They are constantly being rewarded for their efforts to be pretty because they remain attractive longer, they have more things to interest them in life and they give their friends and relatives more pleasure by remaining pretty.

An especially constructed airplane is being used in filming war-time flying scenes of Milton Sills' starring picture, "Hard Boiled Haggerty."

In her next picture, "My Best Girl," Mary Pickford is playing the part of a girl employed in a five-and-ten-cent store.

Pola Negri is back in Hollywood, accompanied by her husband, Prince Mdivani. Her new picture is said to have been adapted from a story by Sidney Howard, stage playwright, and screening is to begin immediately.

During her recent stay abroad, Miss Negri did considerable research work into the life of "Rachel," the famous French tragedienne, which will be the basis for a Negri picture to be made soon.

PENNSYLVANIA EXCURSION SET FOR JUNE 26

First Reduced Rate Trip to Sandusky and Cedar Point Scheduled

The first excursion of the summer to Sandusky and Cedar Point will be operated over the Pennsylvania Railroad, from Columbus through Marion, Sunday, June 26, it was announced today.

Excursions will probably be operated from that time on until Cedar Point closes for the season. They will leave Marion early each Sunday, returning late the same day.

Excursions of this nature have been run over the Penn-ay for several years and are always well patronized by those who wish to spend the day at the summer resort on Lake Erie.

In addition to the Sunday excursions, the Pennsylvania Railroad is offering three, 16 day limit excursions to Atlantic City and return this summer, the first to leave Marion about middle of June.

Other excursions offered this summer on railroads through Marion include Silver Rule 10-day limit special trips to New York and return and a number of Detroit excursions on the Hocking Valley. The Big Four Railroad, which is operating a number of excursions through Delaware and cities east of Marion to Niagara Falls, have not yet announced any special trips through Marion.

Erie Excursion

The Erie Railroad will operate an excursion from Youngstown, through Marion, to Chicago Sunday, but the special train will pick up passengers only between Youngstown and Ashland on the trip. No rates are offered from this city. The occasion of the excursion is to enable baseball fans to see the game between the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Chief Engineer Here

R. L. Kittredge, chief engineer of the Hocking Valley Railroad with headquarters at Columbus, was in Marion yesterday.

Special Train

A number of members of the Eagles' lodge of this city will take advantage of the special Erie train to Youngstown, next Wednesday. The train will carry delegates to the Eagles' convention from all points along the line. Only one special train will be operated.

On Vacation

A. L. Corault, Erie train dispatcher, is taking a two weeks' vacation.

Falls Excursion

The first Niagara Falls excursion of the season on railroads in this vicinity will be operated Sunday when the Big Four branch through Delaware, Galion, Crestline and cities east of Marion will carry a special train. A number of local persons are planning to take the train from Galion.

SOVIET POLICE CONTINUE WAR ON PLOTTERS

Late Woikoff's Brother Accuses Bolshevists of Slaying Ambassador

Moscow, June 17—The soviet political police continue their activities against alleged anti-soviet plotters, and reports of arrests, courts martial and executions come from Leningrad, Minsk and Odessa.

Captain Klepikov, former commander of a battleship in the Baltic fleet, was executed today following conviction in the admiralty courts in Leningrad on charges of espionage for Great Britain. It is alleged that Klepikov delivered soviet naval information to British agents.

Madame Klepikov was sentenced to three years imprisonment for failure to report her husband's activities.

Three alleged Polish spies were sentenced to terms of eight years imprisonment in Minsk.

M. WOIKOFF'S BROTHER ACCUSES BOLSHEVISTS

Warsaw, June 16—The newspaper Kurier Borany created a sensation today when it published a letter, purporting to come from the brother of the recently assassinated Soviet Ambassador Woikoff, declaring that the ambassador had been "murdered by the Bolshevists themselves, because he knew too much and had threatened to expose them in case of a break with Poland."

The letter claims that M. Woikoff had told his brother that the Soviet political police had threatened his life because he wanted to break with the Bolshevists.

The letter charges that M. Rosengoltz, former Soviet charge in London who was with M. Woikoff when he was killed, aided and abetted in the plot against the ambassador.

This City Largest Community In World Bearing Name of Marion, Atlas Discloses

MARION may not compare with other cities in size and population, but at least it is the greatest and largest Marion in the world, according to the international atlas.

At present this city, which is one of 29 cities, towns, villages, junctions, centers and stations in the universe, has a population of approximately 30,000. The number is about 7,000 people more than that of its closest competitor by the same name, Marion, Indiana.

These two cities are the only ones which bear the name of Marion that are cities in size and population. The third largest Marion [illegible] and has a population [illegible].

Of [illegible] places in the world which [illegible] the name of Marion, all [illegible] are in the United States. Marion Downs, a small town [illegible] Australia and Marion Island, [illegible] India Ocean, northeast of south [illegible] of Africa, are the two places outside of North America.

Most of the towns and cities of Marion in the United States are in the eastern and southern sections of the country. There are, however, villages of Marion, Mont., and Marion, Ore., which have populations of 23 and 123 respectively.

Other Marions with a population more than 1,000 are: Marion, Iowa, 4,138; Marion, Ala., 2,035; Marion, Kan., 1,928; Marion, Ky., 1,718; Marion, Mass., 1288; Marion, N. C., 1,784; Marion, S. C., 3,829 and Marion, Va., 3,253.

It is possible that many of the towns were named for General Francis Marion, of Revolutionary war fame, as in the case of this city in April, 1822.

Marion Man Choses Career of Father and Grand Father

With the successful record of his grandfather and father, which extended over a period of more than half a century, as a guiding light, Robert G. McMurray, son of the late Dr. James A. McMurray, yesterday completed the first step of his career as a physician, graduating from the medical department of Ohio State University, Columbus. He will take the examination before the State Medical Board in the near future and later will establish an office in this city.

Dr. McMurray attended Marion High School, Howe Military Academy and Kenyon College, going to Ohio State for his degree work. Both his father and grandfather were graduates of Western Reserve, the former in 1888, and the latter in 1871. Dr. James A. McMurray's death occurred Aug. 25, 1925, and his father died Sept. 8, 1903.

For the present, Dr. McMurray will follow in the footsteps of his father and devote his time to medical practice. Dr. A. B. McMurray, his grandfather, was widely known throughout the state as a surgeon.

Dr. McMurray with his wife and little daughter, Charlotte Ann, reside at 200 Uhler-av.

And we were undressing as we went and flinging our clothes every way for Sunday, and just as I broke through the willows and let go of my pants, which was all I had left, there was Younuss and Maggie and Feeble and the Lost Bag of Tripe. I never stopped going but went head first into the river, and when the rest of the bunch saw what I saw they came after me into the river like a bunch of bullfrogs.

I did not stop till I got to the other side, and then I dug my fingers into the clay bank, for we didn't dast to climb up with them looking. And the Lost Bag of Tripe gathered up our shucks of the willows and set on them, clothes and made a pile of them in the and we stayed there a long time, till I swum up the side of the river around the bend and went over and snuck through the willows like an Indien; and whilst the girls was looking acrosst the river I reached out both hands and got the Lost Bag of Tripe by the ears and yanked him into the willows and told him if he opened his face I would bust him. Then I drug him further away and skinned his clothes off him and put them on and left him nekked. Then I went back and got the clothes off all of them and took them up around the bend, and when the girls would speek to me I would not answer them.

When we got all our clothes on we gave the Lost Bag of Tripe's clothes to Feeble and asked her to give them to the Lost Bag of Tripe. And when we finely went to play ball she was setting on them looking at the river with a far away look in her eyes.

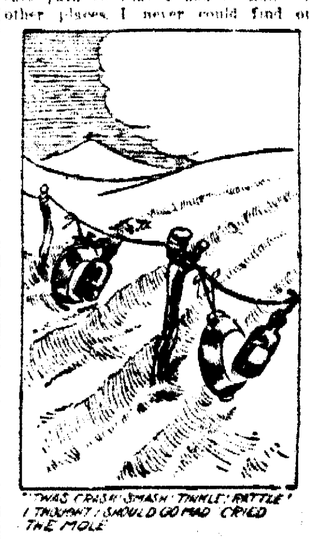
I heard him one morning, I was 'way below the surface.



"'TWAS CRASH! SMASH! TINKLE! RATTLE! I THOUGHT I SHOULD GO MAD" CRIED THE MOLE

"'Miserable Mole!' cried he, and stamped his feet. 'I'll teach him not to destroy my seeds! Make his ears ache, that I will!' And the next morning when I went to the same hunting grounds, what do you think happened?"

"I don't know—what?" asked the Boy, although he thought he could make a pretty good guess.

"I was driven away from the row!" "How?" Peter was curious.

"By a perfectly dreadful noise—a noise that never stopped and made my ears pain so that I had to hunt in other places. I never could find out what it was, but I always suspected that farmer had played a trick upon me."

"Did that noise sound as though tin cans and glass bottles were striking together?" asked Peter.

"How do you suppose an honest mole knows what those things are?" demanded Matty. "Whatever made it, 'twas crash, smash! Tinkle, tinkle! Rattle, bang! until I thought I should go mad. Just so long as I stayed in the row the noise kept up. I had to dig off to escape it! Say, what made you ask me whether it sounded like bottles and cans? Do you know anything about it?" Matty acted suspicious and the Boy told a white fib. He didn't dare tell Matty the whole truth down in that lonely fortress. He couldn't risk making him mad.

"Oh, I didn't have a thing in the world to do with it," declared he. "But bottles and tin cans are very noisy things, my friend!"

Luckily for him, Matty seemed to have lost all interest in the subject and asked no more. But if he had wanted to Peter could have told Matty that he had guessed right. That farmer had played a trick upon the Mole. He had fastened a tin can and a bottle close together on cords above the row of seeds, and when the breeze blew they struck together and made the jangling noise that had made Mole's poor ears ache. Peter wondered if Farmer Brown knew how well his scheme had worked.

dy's Ability to Keep His Head Another Feat

Muses on Kings and inces, Particularly Young Flier

IARLES P. STEWART
NGTON, June 17—A prince- is born to adulation.
are an essential part of his If he hears none he knows something wrong—seriously mean nothing to him. He's aH his life.

knows his part as a sprig of ows his. The stage takes Royalty's training is woven ry life.
a mighty tactful monarch s no blunders—who escapes impression that he holds nething better than ordinary blood—who avoids confusing ce paid to him as a king with the deference which would be paid to him but for the merest accident, of birth.

WHEN popular acclaim comes otherwise than as a gift—in the cradle—it usually is won by slow effort and then it comes only with years.

The elderly hero is apt to be past the point where worship signifies much to him He's accustomed himself to it by degrees.

It frequently spoils him, nevertheless.

BUT occasionally the chain lightning of fame descends right out of a clear sky and strikes some totally unprepared individual all at once—sock!

It's assumed that he's done something to deserve it.

He may have been working up to it gradually, but others didn't know he was doing it and he didn't realize it himself.

HE may be young or he may be old. If he's old, perhaps there's a chance for him yet. It's just possible that an old guy will have developed enough sense of humor beforehand, and suffered enough hard knocks, to absorb the electricity of sudden, unexpected success without blowing up.

God help him if he's young.

He'll stand there for a bit, with the lightning 'running' off him in streams, trying to figure out what hit him—and then,gosh! how upstage he'll get. Or else he'll do some damphool thing.

THEN watch him collapse.

The lightning didn't strike him any faster than he'll deflate.

It doesn't make any difference how genuine his merits were or what a nice duck he really is or how well he was entitled to his momentary reputation as a world's wonder—it's an almost invariable rule.

ALMOST invariable—but not quite. Look at "Lindy."

One day he was a young mechanic—wore overalls—fine boy, but no importance whatever—stood just a chance of shaking hands with the president some day ,at a public reception, but that was all—a mere kid.

Next day, but one, premiers were kissing him, kings were fighting to entertain him at lunch and the other night he slept at the White House.

And he couldn't fit into his new surroundings better if he'd been educated for 'em from the time he was one minute old. If he'd had it in him to make any bad breaks, needless to say he'd have begun making 'em long, long before now.

Flying the Atlantic, as a record-breaking performance, wasn't a patch on the way that boy's kept his head.

PROGRESS OF MERGER PLANS HELPS MARKET

Loree's Southwestern Layout Nearly Ready for Commission

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks strong. Industrial stocks irregular. Domestic bonds steady. Foreign bonds steady. Foreign bonds steady. Call money 4 per cent. Grain firm. Copper irregular. Oil irregular. Cotton firm. Rubber irregular. Sugar steady. Pig iron irregular. Foreign exchange irregular.

New York, June 17—Confirmation by L. F. Loree of the reports of definite progress in the southwestern railroad merger unification plans stimulated active buying of the stocks of these railroads today. The plan is almost ready for submission to the interstate commerce commission, and, when objectionable features have been eliminated, it is believed that no further delays will be necessary.

St. Louis-Southwestern was the spectacular performer of this group, the stock selling as high as 93, against yesterday's price of 79 1-2. Katy and Kansas City Southern, the other members of the trio, sold up about two points in an active and confident forward movement. Outside of New Haven and Rock Island, which advanced about two points on the average, the balance of the rail list was inactive and featureless.

A sharp decline in freight car loadings in the latest weekly report of the American Railway Association was accounted for by the Memorial Day holiday. Industrial reports were practically unchanged, though the week-end estimates of activities in the building construction and cotton textile industries were constructive, while private reports of steel buying were encouraging. Automobile buying of finished steel is expected to increase materially as soon as apprehension over the effect of Ford's new model has passed over.

OUTSIDE RUBBER MARKET

New York, June 17—Trading in the outside market for crude rubber futures was quiet today with prices irregular.

Sellers asked 37 1-4 cents for spot and June ribbed smoked sheets; 37 1-2 cents for July-Sept; 38 cents for Oct-Dec; 39 1-2 cents for Jany.-March.

BIRTHS

A son was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lesser at their home, 761 Henry-st.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Secord are the parents of a daughter born last night at their home, 280 Park blvd.

COURT NEWS

Opal T. Smart was granted a divorce from Joseph T. Smart and also restored to her maiden name by Judge Scofield in the Common Pleas court this morning.

The suit was filed on a charge of gross neglect and the defendant failed to appear at the hearing this morning. The law firm of Mouser, Young & Mouser represented the plaintiff at the hearing. The plaintiff's maiden name is Opal Thompson.

LEPROSY CASE?

Martins Ferry, June 17—Officials here are baffled by what has been reported as a possible case of leprosy contracted by a Greek resident of this city. Federal experts from Washington will be asked from the public health service to confirm the diagnosis. Dr. Mahoney, of the state health department has also been called here to examine the patient.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Cool weather continues to play in favor of the strawberry grower. Berries, which in other years, would now be flooding the market and selling at a low price, are coming on the market in quantities just sufficient to supply the demand and are being offered at 20 cents. Some dealers late yesterday were offering berries at two quarts for 18 cents, in an effort to clean up old stock.

California peaches, plums and apricots arrived on the market this morning, peaches are being offered at two pounds for 25 cents, and plums and apricots at 25 cents a pound. California cherries are offered at 50 cents. Cantaloupes are plentiful at from 15 to 30 cents.

Yellow wax bean are being quoted at 30 cents. Green vegetables continue to arrive slowly and prices remain unseasonably high. Several days of warm weather would bring prices tumbling, dealers say. TWO CASES ARE APPEALED FROM PROBATE COURT

Defendants in Estate Litigations Seek Reversal of Decisions

Two suits, judgments in which were given to the plaintiffs at the hearings in the Marion County probate court in May, were filed today in the office of the Marion County court of common pleas by the defendants for another hearing.

Margaret Ludwig is the plaintiff in error in the suit to set aside the judgment of the probate court in the claim allowance case against Francis McClain who is administratrix of the estate of Martha Snellgrove, deceased.

The claim against the estate was allowed to Francis McClain in the judgment of the court. The plaintiff-in-error of the present suit claims that the judgment of the court was contrary to the evidence and also contrary to law. The hearing was held May 16.

William Sosey and Fred L. Carhart, administrators of the estate of the late Nellie Sosey, defendants of the suit in the probate court, placed the suit for the sale of real estate for hearing in the court of common pleas. The defendant-in-error of Harry E. Thomas, administrator of the estate of the late Elizabeth A. Moore, who was given the judgment of the court for the issuance and allowance for the sale of the real estate of the Moore estate.

Sosey and Carhart charge that the judgment of the court in the case was contrary to the evidence presented and also contrary to the law. The hearing in the probate court was held May 26.

Seeks New Trial

Motion for a new trial in the divorce suit of Mrs. Minnie F. Perry against Roland W. Perry was made by the plaintiff in the court of common pleas, today.

The suit, tried before Judge B. Scofield, was set aside at its hearing June 14 for the lack of sufficient evidence. The plaintiff charged the defendent with gross neglect.

The plaintiff in her petition for a new trial declared that she has obtained new evidence. She also averred that the judgment of the former hearing was not sustained by sufficient evidence.

Three Appointments

Three appointments were made by the probate court, late yesterday and today.

Etta May Gushurst was appointed administratrix of the estate of the late John D. Krautter; Mary Sneckenberger was appointed executrix of the estate of the late Joseph Sneckenberger, and Bertha E. Landon was appointed administratrix of the estate of the late Edgar C. Heyde.

PYTHIANS TO DECORATE GRAVES HERE SUNDAY

Plans Completed at Meeting of Uniformed Rank Members

Arrangements were made for decorating the graves of Pythians and Pythian Sisters buried in Marion Cemetery next Sunday morning, at the meeting of members of Marion Company, No. 15, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, last night in K. of P. Hall. Members of Marion Lodge No. 402, Canby No. 51 as well as the Rank are requested to bring their flowers to the lodgerooms of Marion Lodge, No. 402, before 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

Plans were also made for attending a meeting of the sixth regiment at Plymouth Sunday, June 26, when members of the nine different companies of the northwestern district will be in attendance, Kenton, Tiffin, Fostoria, Sandusky, Willard, Ashland, Mansfield, Crestline and Marion.

It was also decided to transfer the regular meeting next Thursday night to Lima and all members are urged to attend the meeting at the K. P. hall in that city.

ALMOST ABANDON HOPE FOR RESCUE OF FLIERS

Mystery of Flare Signals in Wilderness Still Unsolved Today

Quebec, Que., June 17.—The mystery of the supposed flare signals reported to have been seen near St. Germain Township in the mountainous wilderness north of Saguenay River still was unsolved today, but hope that they might have come from the missing French aviators, Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, has almost been abandoned.

Flashes were reported Sunday night, Tuesday night, Wednesday night and again last night.

Doubt is now expressed by supporters of the early theory that Nungesser and Coli were stranded in the northern part of Quebec province. However, hope has not been abandoned entirely that the men may be found alive in the wilderness.

Word was received from Chicoutimi that flashes had been seen last night about 9 o'clock in the same district where the earlier "signals" were reported.

"GORILLA MAN" IDENTIFIED IN TWO MURDERS

Winnipeg Police State Positively Suspect Is Wanted in Other Cities

Winnipeg, Man., June 17—Chief of Detectives George Smith and Inspector Philip Stark stated positively today that the man arrested at Killarney yesterday and brought to Winnipeg by special train is the man they want for murdering two women here in Winnipeg.

They state further that from information supplied them by United States detectives here, they are sure their prisoner is the "gorilla" wanted for at least 20 similar killings in the United States.

Earle Nelson, as he was registered at Central Police Station, Winnipeg, says he was born at San Francisco. Earlier in the day he said he came originally from Lancaster, England, and never had been in the United States. Virgil Wilson was the name given a few hours earlier.

Nelson alias Wilson was apprehended Wednesday night by provincial police at Killarney, Manitoba. He was brought to Winnipeg under heavy guard.

TOLEDO HOPES TO SEE MURDERS CLEARED

Toledo, June 17—Police here today revived their hopes that the "clubber" who murdered five women here, and clubbed several others, may be in custody, and the murders may be cleared up, following reports that suspects are being held in Portland, Ore., and also in Winnepeg, Man.

A man giving the name of Adrian Harris, held as a "gorilla man" by Portland authorities, according to early reports to local police, apparently tallies with the meager descriptions available of the Toledo slayer.

Five women, whose killings were never solved, were slain by the Toledo "clubber," during the past two years. They were Miss Lily Dale Croy, school teacher; Mrs. Mary Alden, 47; Miss Lydia Baumgartner; Mrs. Emma Hatfield and Mrs. Mary Hadley, 42. A score of suspects have been arrested and examined by police here at various times in connection with the killings, but no evidence was procured to connect any of them definitely with the killings.
